No answers at hearing

A good many of the approximately 200 persons at the public hearing Wednesday night would liked to have sent the six or eight postal service officials packing.

And they could have taken their proposed new post office with them.

The hearing was called to present plans for the proposed new building after opposition forces earlier had put a fight to either change the proposed location or, better, to stop the project all-together.

After a three hour meeting, however, the realization became apparent that the decision would be made, not in Canyon, but in Oklahoma City.

In addition to those fighting the new post office, the crowd in the community center included a sizable group of boosters.

The Canyon Chamber of Commerce and the First United Pentacostal Church both supported the proposal.

Opponents included Jim Palmer, Mary Parker, and Ann Brown.

Representing the U. S. Postal Service were Lee Roy Moreland, Canyon postmaster; C. T. Davis, Amarillo postmaster and area supervisor; Dale Fowlkes, district supervisor from Oklahoma City and a former Canyon resident; W. T. Brady, head of the post office real estate division in Dallas and Gil Downing, architectural consultant from Dallas.

Marjorie Harrington, from Rep. Jack Hightower's office, attended but did not take part in the discussion.

The proposed building will be situated on an L-shaped plot bounded on the north by 4th Avenue, on the east by the Pentacostal Church, on the south by 5th Avenue and on the west by 13th Street.

Two stucco houses facing 4th Avenue will have to be torn down and two frame houses and a stucco one will be torn down on Fifth Avenue. A brick home on the corner of 5th and 13th will be left.

Traffic plans call for customer entry from 13th Street and exit on 4th Avenue. A mail drop will also enter and exit on 4th.

Employees and service vehicles will enter and exit on 5th Avenue.

The proposed building will double the working space of the present post office, officials said. It will contain about 9,000 square feet, which is the approximate size of the present building and its unfinished and unused basement.

Cost for the new post office is estimated at $581,000. This includes $486,000 for construction and furnishings and $95,000 cost and trade for the land.

The new construction will cost less than remodeling the present building, which would have to be gutted, Brady said.

The land package was put together by First National Bank, Brady said, and will include a trade for the present post office. The building and cash together will total $95,000, Brady said.

Disclosure of the proposed deal with the bank drew criticism but postal officials defended the move.

'There is nothing hidden about it, it's all above board," Brady said. "It is a good deal."

The meeting began with postal plans being presented. Next speakers pro and con voiced their views and then questions and answers were given.

Palmer, the most active opponent of the post office who has traveled to Oklahoma City and Dallas to present his case, objected to the post office on historical grounds.

Fifth Avenue contains some of the oldest homes in Canyon, he said. The places along the tree-lined street are well-preserved and well-cared. Putting the post office on that block will lead to the eventual widening of 5th and the destruction of a historical neighborhood, Palmer said.

Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Brown both objected to the cost of the project.

"I wouldn't build a new home if I owed $550 billion," Mrs. Brown said.

"It is absolute insanity to build a new facility no bigger than we have," said Fletcher Sims. "We can't continue to spend money. You can't spend forever."

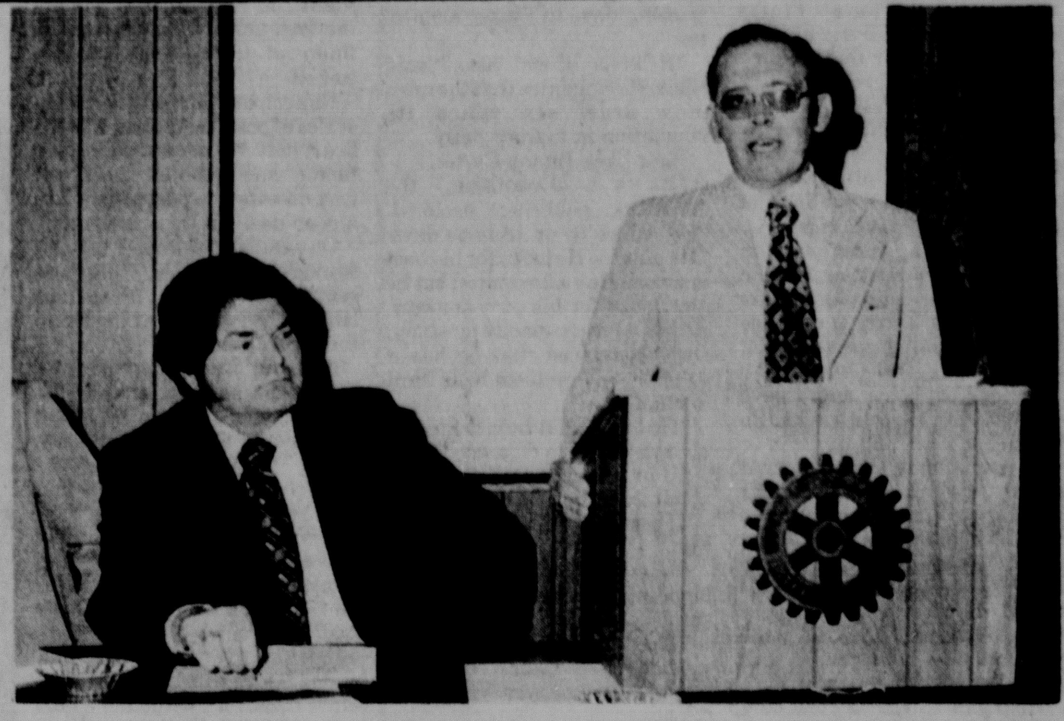
Phil Langen, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce supported the proposal.

"Regardless of political persuasion, I believe each one of us wants to see the government spend our money in a frugal manner. However, the money for a new postal facility in Canyon has already been budgeted and we will not stop the federal spending by rejecting this construction — rather, we would be saying that 'we don't want a new facility in Canyon built to serve our needs'. We would be saying 'build it elsewhere, either in Dimmitt or Dumas, but not here'."

Construction funds come from a capital improvement budget financed by the sale of bonds, postal officials said.

Finally, one questioner asked "Are we trying to decide if we will have a new post office or not?"

"No," said Fowlkes, "That decision will be made in Oklahoma City."



Canyon postmaster Lee Roy Moreland outlines plans for a proposed new post office building as W. H. Brady, Dallas real estate specialist for the postal service mentally plans his presentation at a public hearing held here this week.

Good business seen in swap

There is nothing unusual in the land deal tentatively arranged between the Postal Service and First National Bank, a postal official said this week.

Exchanges are frequently made in acquiring property, said W. H. Brady of the real estate division of the Postal Service in Dallas.

The bank already owns six lots in the site and has proposed to acquire the rest.

Brady disclosed the tentative arrangements between the bank and the post office at a public hearing here this week to explain plans to build a new post office.

The new building is proposed between Fourth and Fifth Avenues and 13th and 14th Streets.

The total value of the land exchange will be $95,000, Brady said.

The bank will swap property they own now or will acquire as a result of the deal in exchange for the old post office building and enough cash to make the package equal $95,000, Brady said.

An Amarillo appraiser is completing final appraisal on both the post office and the bank lots.

"If both figures are the same, we'll have an even trade," Brady said. "If the property is less valuable that means it is not a good deal. If the property is worth more, then it's a good business proposition."

Brady said the purchase price will not exceed $95,000, and maybe less.

"If it is a favorable exchange, we would recommend it; if not, we'd have to go back to the bank and talk some more."

Brady said his office is still working as if the sale would be final. But, actually the decision to build the post office will come later from Oklahoma City or Memphis.

"If there is too much opposition, they may decide to drop it," he said.

The comments from the public hearing will be studied, he said, before recommendations are completed.

"We're still going ahead in case we get the green light."

These 'drom moms' are awfully young

By BEVERLY MCCARLEY

This fall semester, two WTSU dorms will be run by two young directors. Kay Hagar, 23, and Brenda Land, 24, are beginning their first year in their new positions.

Though the age-old connotation "dorm mother" may not exactly fit the two young ladies, Brenda is in reality a dorm mother. She lives with her husband, David, and their two-year-old daughter, Dixie.

Brenda said she would not be bothered if she were referred to as "dorm mother". "I guess since I am a mother, I wouldn't mind the title."

Kay Hagar, on the other hand, is single and objects to the concept of "mother." She hopes that with younger directors, the title "dorm director" will catch on.

Neither of the two new directors feel that the slim age difference between them and dorm residents will create problems. They both feel that their performance will determine the amount of respect they will be given, not their age.

According to Kay, respect and trust will be given to any person with a good personality, attitude and, of course, position no matter what their age.

Brenda feels that the girls in the dorm will probably feel better with a younger director who is more in tune with their problems.

Kick off set for boosters

Canyon Booster Club will kick off another year with an organization meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the First National Bank Building.

Canyon High football players and cheerleaders will be introduced.

One of the club projects already begun this year is the chartering of a bus to take spectators to the Monterey Lubbock game Sept. 4. Phil Langen, club president said.

One bus, and possibly two, will go to the game, he said. Bus tickets are $6.

Other projects this year include providing posters of the varsity players to place in store windows and posting signs at the players' yards reading "This is the home of fighting Eagle . . .".

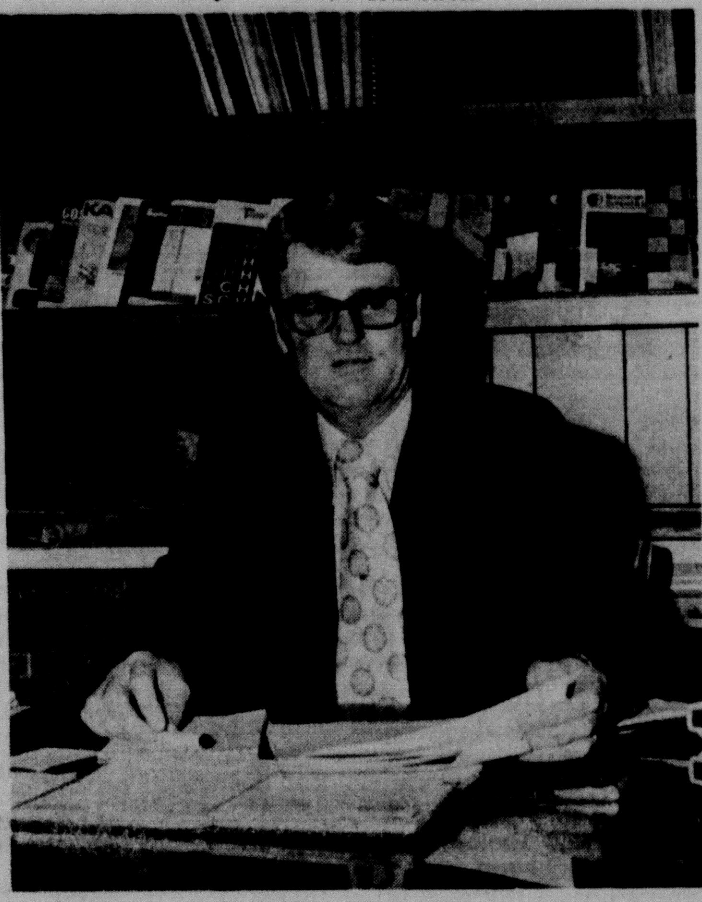
Money raised by the club usually buys one item of equipment not included in the school's athletic budget.

Prosecuter need probed

A bi-city county group of government entities agreed Wednesday in Amarillo to form a study organization to look at the possibility of obtaining a grant to hire a special prosecutor for Potter and Randall Counties.

In the meeting were the commissions of Amarillo and Canyon.

The move was suggested by Amarillo City Commissioner Clay Briggs. Also discussed was governmental support for Kids, Inc.



Dr. Sam Thompson

No change in schools

Although the Canyon Independent School District has a new superintendent, there is likely to be little change soon in the way things are done now.

"I operate on history for awhile," Dr. Sam Thompson said. "I'll study the present program and if the program is meeting the needs of children and young people, then I'll have no recommendation for change."

But he does have a goal to increase the involvement of the community with the school system.

"I do have a goal of getting the community involved in education," he said. "And I think I have a system to do that.

"I want to utilize the talent at WTSU. I think they could put their skills to use for us."

Thompson said he strongly believes that schools are for children and young people.

"Everything we do should enrich their program," he said.

He stressed the importance of basic education, the skills of reading and arithmetic, but every course, he said, should be career related.

Career education is something different from vocational education, Thompson said.

"Career education relates to every subject," he said. The uses of English, math and other everyday courses in later life should be told so that students can see the need for the information.

In elementary grades, career education consists primarily of making students aware of opportunities.

Junior high is a time for awareness and exploration, he said, and in senior high, students should add skills.

Thompson sees the key to success in education to a close relationship of teachers and parents.

If there is anything different about education today, it is the deterioration of the parental interest in the schools, he believes.

"Are kids different? Some say they are but maybe we're all different. We all had our little hang-ups. Kids aren't a great deal different now.

"But they haven't had the support of parents. In Irving there were a lot of broken homes, therefore I don't believe the students had the parent's interest and support in the schools. If there is a difference, that may be it," he said.

Thompson said he hoped that parents would take any problems with their children to the proper source. Probably, they should begin with the child's teacher, he said.

"Start with the teacher and if that doesn't solve the problem, then go to the principal and then to me or to the board if necessary", he said.

Thompson was assistant superintendent of Irving schools before coming here in mid-August to replace Jerry Jacobs.

He grew up in Shamrock and was a barber there for some years.

He graduated from Frank Phillips College with an associate degree, got a BS and MS at West Texas and a Ph.D at the University of Texas.

He has done graduate work at the University of Houston, North Texas State, East Texas State and Texas Women's University.

He and his wife, the former Ruth Stimmel of East St. Louis, have two children. Their son, Tim is a freshman pre-dental student at Texas Tech and their county okay on road Canyon North gets

Two years of needlework is almost completed by the Canyon Fine Arts Club which is preparing a historic wall hanging for the Canyon City Library which depicts the growth of Randall County. Club members stitching on the final phase of the project this past week were from left, Anita Low, Helen Harrell, Margaret Harper, president, Audrey Sanders and Claudia Neelley, project chairman. The unveiling is expected next month at a special event being arranged for by the Canyon City Library Board.

Randall County commissioners Friday in a called meeting agreed to conditions under which it would accept roads in Canyon North, amended the budget and asked for another draft of an ambulance service agreement.

Attorney Don Dean appearing on behalf of developer A. W. Lair presented a contract agreeing to a 4-point plan designed to obtain acceptance from the court.

1. The developer agreed to improve drainage as shown in plans drawn by City Engineer Bill McMorries.

2. To begin as soon as contractor and equipment are available to proof-roll existing pavement bringing the roadway to stability.

3. To remove all weeds, apply commercial weed killer and patch any areas where needed.

4. To lay two courses of full strength asphalt to bring the total asphalt thickness to a minimum of four inches and as far as practical to correct the crown in the paving which work shall be completed before Aug. 31, 1977.

The agreement was approved by commissioners with the understanding that a bond of $40,000 would be supplied by the developer. Commissioners stressed that the improvements set forth in the agreement still do not bring the roads up to county standards but only to a level at which the county will accept them.

Commissioners approved an amended budget presented by County Manager Carroll Wilson and Auditor Bill Tirey. District Attorney Randall Sherrod said they could legally do so since new positions had been created and it was necessary to shift money from one fund to another since adoption of the current budget.

Also, since the budget for the current year was adopted the fiscal year has been changed from Jan. to Dec. 31 to Oct. 1 to Sept. 30.

After an appearance by representatives of Palo Duro Hospital District and the city of Canyon, the court agreed to prepare a contract with all three entities being named as parties in an agreement with Metropolitan Ambulance Service.

LaWayne Guengerich told the court that because of a misunderstanding in April, an additional $240 would be added to the subsidy tab being picked up by the county, city and hospital district for ambulance service.

This figure was the amount already being paid by the county for service in South Amarillo before Metropolitan began serving the rest of the county last April.

Metropolitan decided to forego the $240 a month when it was agreed that the firm could charge rates approved recently by the city of Amarillo which are slightly higher than those being charged in South Randall County.

The court also voted to pay Southwestern Public Service Company $4,689 for moving a group of utility poles.

A called meeting of the court is set for next Friday to discuss salaries of county employees.

Dee Griffin: raise Bruse, but not Burks

Randall County tax assessor-collector will get a hefty 25 percent increase in salary but only on condition that Mrs. Audrey Bruse is re-elected.

At least this is how things will unfold if Commisioner Dee Griffin has his way.

Griffin has expressed discontent with the salary of Mrs. Bruse on several occasions. Friday he was more outspoken.

He said the court should wait until after the election in Nvember and if Mrs. Bruse is returned to office raise her salary from $12,960 a year to a whopping $16,200 making her the highest paid county official on the payroll.

Mrs. Bruse is a Republican and Griffin is a Democrat.

What to do if fellow Democrat Bob Burks is elected to the office? Leave the pay just like it is quoth Democrat Griffin.

It was Republican John Fulgenzi who led the vocal dissent on the court. "The people elect the tax assessor-collector," said Fulgenzi, "And the pay should be the same no matter who is elected."

The next crunch might be yours

The opening of the schools and university has produced the annual traffic crunch, Canyon police chief Al Stewart observed this week.

He expects a sharp increase in the number of traffic accidents for the next several weeks.

City police will take some measures to monitor traffic, he said, but many of the problems are beyond police control.

For example, the streets skirting Canyon High, a highly congested area, were never designed for the amount of traffic that travels past the school, he said.

Removing the kindergarten from Rex Reeves Elementary helped congestion at Rex Reeves and dumped it on Sixth Avenue, Stewart said.

As soon as the signs are ready, they will be posted along Sixth at the kindergarten, making that a 'No parking — loading and unloading only' area, Stewart said. The speed limit during school will be set at 20 mph.

In addition, policemen will hand out warning letters to motorists double parked at the elementary school or kindergarten explaining the hazard there and asking for cooperation.

School zone speed laws are back in effect and are being enforced, he said.

Stewart reminded motorists to drive with particular care for the next several weeks. Watch for children darting from between parked cars or running out into the street.

Although the accident rate traditionally increases in September, few of the wrecks cause injuries.

Money still coming to aid Buffs

Money is still coming in to the special fund begun last year to try to bail WTSU intercollegiate athletics out of debt.

So far, a total of $133,665.63 has been received, in excess of the $125,000 planned, said Dr. Jack Bullock, assistant to the president for intercollegiate athletics.

But, he says he has no doubt but that the fund drive will be undertaken each year.

There is a projected deficit as of June 30 for the year ending Tuesday of $131,534.51. The deficit will likely be greater than that, however, since actual expenditures are running ahead of projections in some funds.

This year's budget did not reflect the fund drive.

WT athletics got in trouble last year when the board of regents said the program had to live within its means. One idea was to pull West Texas out of the Missouri Valley Conference but the successful fund drive staved off that result for at least a year.

The only program expected to show a profit this year is basketball, which, as of June 30 was in the black by $8,766.10. This figure will be reduced, Bullock said, because actual expenditures have been greater than those allowed for.

Bullock pointed out that in judging the revenue and expenditures of the sports, the athletic administration costs must be proportioned to each sport. Basketball picks up the tab for 30 percent of the cost of administration and football carries 70 per cent.

Expected deficits for other sports are:

football — $7,530.38
tennis — $6,151.61
track — $6,329.93
golf — $2,215.66
women's athletics — $1,319.09
administration — $116,753.94

The budget for the year starting Sept. 1 shows an expected balance of $75.

Revenues, including the special fund, are estimated at $682,550. Expenditures are projected to be $682,475.

Football is budgeted for $258,408 with a deficit of $38,158.

Basketball is expected to make $5,000 above the $145,000 budgeted for it.

The tennis program is projected to cost $17,989, with a $5,639 deficit.

Track will have $20,734 to spend with a $534 deficit foreseen.

Golf is projected to go $45 over its budget of $9,295 and women's athletics is budgeted to break even at $37,000.

Athletic administration will cost $93,549 and have a deficit of $85,549.

Teen is still badly injured

A Canyon teenager is still in serious condition at the intensive care unit at Northwest Texas Hospital as a result of an auto accident, Aug. 13.

Mike Burkett was the most seriously injured of five youths in a one car accident on VFW Road.

He was a passenger in the vehicle driven by Brian Pratt.

Appraisers moving in

Southwest Appraisal Company of Austin will be moving into the old school tax office in Randall County Courthouse.

The firm will begin a year-long reappraisal of taxable property in the county Sept. 1.

Supervising the work here will be Larry Beard. Tax officers say the job will require about one year.

The firm was hired on a basis of $8 per parcel which is estimated to cost the county about $232,000. A cost, marketing and income approach to setting values is expected to be used.

FROM THE CANYON RIM

Down the road about 10 miles from Plains, Georgia lies the thriving city of Americus, population 17,000.

To the folks in Plains, Americus must seem like a city metropolis because Plains numbers only 500. But one of that 500 is none other than Jimmy Carter.

To satisfy a desire to know what home folks think about the man who may be the next President of the United States I talked to Billy Blair, publisher of the newspaper in Americus.

Billy is a soft spoken knowledgeable Southerner who served in the state legislature while Jimmy Carter was in the Georgia Senate. I can tell you I was impressed with the Americus publisher and I gave some weight to what he had to tell me.

"I saw Jimmy Carter around and knew who he was but I didn't really get to know him until we both got interested in politics about the same time," Blair related. "He was elected to the Senate and I was elected to the House from the same county the same year and we both served four years."

Blair said Carter has lost only one time in his home county and that was when he got into the governor's race late in 1966. "The voters were already pledged to vote for Bo Calloway in the Republican primary and Jimmy lost to Lester Maddox."

Maddox went on to be elected governor in the Georgia Assembly although he received fewer votes than Callaway who had failed to poll a plurality.

Blair says Carter estimates that he shook some 500,000 hands and was elected governor in 1970.

Billy reports that Plains is not the same little town it was six months ago. New shops have sprung up and a lively business is being done in Carter mementos.

"It keeps them busy," said Blair. He estimates that the town may draw six times its population in tourists daily.

Blair likes Jimmy Carter.

"He is hard working," the Americus publisher declared. "He works 16 or 18 hour days. "He digs in. He looks for his own answers. He seeks counsel but he also looks for his own answers. He has a great capacity for study. Once convinced that he has a solution to a problem he is hard to change.

"He loves what he is doing. He always wants to do a good job.

"If he has ever been dishonest about anything, I can't recall it.

"There just aren't any flies on him."

Blair says stories that Carter is brooding and vindictive are not true.

"I have never known him to be vindictive," Blair declared. "Competitive . . . yes. Vindictive . . . no.

"I have always known him to be compassionate although not outwardly emotional. He took a position on civil rights back when it was not popular and many of his neighbors did not like it."

Blair knows Jimmy Carter as community minded. He says Carter took his first step into politics back in 1960 when he was named to the county school board. In Georgia there is a county and city school system. Carter strove to get the two consolidated, which would require sanction by the voters.

"He never quite made it on that," said Blair. "It hasn't been done yet."

Carter is a member of Plains Lions Club and served as Lions Club District Governor. He has also served on his community's library board and is a deacon in the Baptist Church.

"If he gets elected, I think he'll make you a good President," declared Blair with conviction.

At the community meeting on the new post office Wednesday night the central point on why the Post Office Department is in financial trouble was not discussed.

Ridiculous, unrealistic wage scales of postal employes is at the heart of it. We are not pointing a finger and we are glad our friends with the post office have a good deal but facts are facts.

Outlandish salaries of city workers broke New York and sent one of the most prosperous cities in the world over the hill to the poor house.

A postal official here Wednesday night announced that the pay scale is $8.04 an hour and that is only for a 40 hour week. That's $16,723.20 a year and what they get for overtime would take your hat off.

We have people on the university campus with doctorates who do not make as much as the people who deliver their mail. It's not realistic in comparison to the area's wages and undoubtedly will break the post office department whether a new post office is built in Canyon or not.

And it hasn't improved the service.

C.T. Davis, post office official from Amarillo, told the group that mail service is better and mail is getting through faster.

This just does not measure up to fact.

Mail for the Canyon News coming into the local post office is chronically late. We've had $200 worth of books, shipped by mail, ruined in transient in the past three months. The books were shipped in special envelopes designed to prevent damage.

The window service is slow and congested at the post office here because not enough people are on the job. This is in part at least because unrealistic wages quickly dissipates the budget allocated to the Canyon post office.

At the present rate, $40 an hour hires approximately five people. If the rate were a realistic $5 an hour it would hire eight people.

Our World

It is irrational to spend beyond income

By ANN BROWN

For 40 years, conservative Americans have insisted our fiscal irresponsibility, profligate waste, and deficit spending could only end in national bankruptcy.

Hundreds of thousands of individuals have gone bankrupt. No one seemed to notice — except the people directly involved.

Business firms close every day. Again, who cares? Only those involved.

According to the U. S. Dept. of Commerce, 27 states are now receiving more money from the federal government than they send to Washington, which means the rest of us are paying their bills. This situation has existed for years unnoticed.

New York City went bankrupt — and that got some attention — briefly. Now that the federal government is paying their bills, all seems to be back to normal.

But whether it's an individual, community, state, or city, when outgo exceeds income, there's coming a pay day someday.

According to the Bureau of Economic Analysis, the beggar states are not confined to the states lacking wealth; they include Alaska, New York, California, and Hawaii, four of our richest states.

And the area with the highest per capita income in America tops the list of beggars: Washington, D. C.!

Alaska ranks first in per capita income; New York is 5th; California is number 8, and Hawaii is number 10.

Texas ranks below the median in income (number 33), but only 17 states send more money to Washington than we do.

Anyone who studies the list of paying and receiving states can readily see it is not a matter of income but of management.

What is true of states is equally true of individuals, cities, and communities. Wherever more is consumed than is produced, trouble is inevitable. Every rational American knows this, yet bankruptcies mount.

According to the news report, Dallas is spending $23 million this year to bus their public school children across town.

That $23 million is not just wasted tax money; it will create havoc in the schools, homes, traffic, and the buses. It is totally irrational.

When the Grand Teton Dam was proposed, hundreds of the people who lived along the banks of the Teton River, pointed out the dangers involved, and pleaded with Big Brother to leave them alone.

The Dam was built. What did the local yokels know? How much will that fiasco cost the taxpayers in cash? Then think of the property destroyed, and the lives lost.

What has happened to Americans? Our forefathers rebelled and fought a bloody war over taxes on tea. What would have been their reaction if the government had interfered with their children and their homes?

Of course, not all parents have meekly submitted to the arrogant injustice of snatching their children out of the neighborhood school and sending them across town merely because of the color of their skin (a rank violation of the Constitution).

Quite a number of parents have gone to jail; others are severely depriving themselves — and their children — to send them to private schools.

One family in Amarillo sent seven children to a private school last year. The parents said if they had to buy their clothes at Goodwill, go hungry, and walk to work, they would not bus their children across town when there were schools all around them.

It started as a matter of principle. Now the parents are convinced their children are receiving so much better education at the Christian school they attend, they vow they will never send them back to public school. America's biggest industry may be cutting its own throat.

Willful waste makes woeful want no matter what is wasted.

A public showing of sculpture and paintings was arranged at the WTSU Activities Center this week by the Working Cowboy Artists association. The exhibition was sponsored by the WT Rodeo Club. Here Dave Brown and Bill Dabney arrange their work.

Dieters can eat out too

Eating several meals a week away from home doesn't have to be a caloric disaster, Marilyn Haggard, a foods and nutrition specialist says.

"Try to select restaurants which offer a variety of foods and a different menu each day. This gives the opportunity to eat a wide variety of foods to meet daily nutritional needs," she said.

Miss Haggard is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"If watching the waistline, try to find an eating establishment which offers a wide selection of salads or a salad bar and meats which are grilled or roasted. Avoid places where the entree is either fried or drenched in a thick, calorie-laden sauce.

"This goes for vegetables too — many of the most convenient eating places offer french fried potatoes as the only vegetable. Potatoes are a good food, but other vegetables are needed to assure a well-balanced diet," she reminded.

Select vegetables which are steamed or baked and served without the added calories of cream sauces, stuffings and butter. Be wise in selecting bread. Texas toast and those huge chunks of jalapeno cornbread are easily equal to two servings of bread each and with butter, they really add up, she reminded.

"If dessert is necessary, select a plain gelatin dish, custard or sherbet. You'll feel better mentally and physically all afternoon long if you eat in moderation at lunch." she said.

Driver charged

A female driver was arrested at 3:50 a.m. Thursday on charges of driving while intoxicated. She was apprehended in the 200 block of US Highway 87.

A futile exercise

In spite of the poor choice of nights for a public hearing, the public turned out in healthy numbers for the postal hearing.

It was a nice exercise in futility. The postal service presented its plans and the opposition presented its arguments and the boosters voiced its support all as if the decision to build a new post office would be made in Canyon.

It won't be, as one Canyon resident realized and confirmed. The decision will be made within the U.S. Postal Service, probably in Oklahoma City. This is not to say they will or won't take the public sentiments into consideration. But the postal service bureaucracy will have the final say.

Efforts by the opposition to enlist Congressional aid were not successful. For one thing, once Congress transformed the post office into a separate profit-seeking entity, it lost control of the service.

The experiment in capitalism as far as the post office has been concerned has been a disaster. Postage prices have risen dramatically. Service has decreased. Errors have increased.

Dale Fowlkes, district supervisor who lived in Canyon three years, listed the goals the postal service was given or assumed when the service was separated: to pay workers the comparable salary as the private sector; to give quality level postal service; to substantially improve working conditions and to make measurable strides to balance the income with the outgo.

They've done rather well on two goals. Average wages and fringe benefits for postal employees amount to $8.05 an hour compared to $8.04 an hour for workers such as the Teamsters' members.

With an agressive building program backed by $10 billion in construction bonds, the service should be improving the working conditions like mad.

That leaves the mandate to provide quality service and try to balance the budget and you all know how they've done with those goals.

Now, how about calling the experiment off? It was all a good idea, perhaps, to take politics out of the post office and make the service pay for itself.

But it hasn't worked. Why not put the post office back under the control of Congress, to give the people at least more of a say-so in the operation and policies.

And why not start considering the postal service a service again, necessary to the public good as other government services are. This is not to say that economy and budget balancing should be thrown out the window, but good quality postal service for the patron should be the primary goal. Then work on the budget.

Postage rates in every nation but Canada are higher than ours and maybe we'll just have to get used to the idea of paying still higher postage rates. But with good service, the price wouldn't be so galling.

Maybe it's needed

Quite a lot has been made of the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) edict to provide toilet and wash facilities within a five minute walk of all field and farm workers.

The concept of a prairie potty might be comical save for the fact that ridiculous ideas can easily become laws.

Of course, if a chemical outhouse and a 50-gallon drum of water with a spigot, all mounted on the back of a pickup would meet the regulation, then maybe there is something to say for the idea.

If, in this vast, open, treeless, bushless, even gulleyless land, you have ever been summoned by an urgent call of nature, you must admit there is some need for such a facility.

And on behalf of lettuce lovers everywhere, the idea needs some consideration.

Kahler at West Point

Dr. John Kahler, associate professor of History at WTSU, was one of 40 participants in a five week military history summer workshop at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

West Point faculty officers conducted discussions for the seminar which consisted of six civilian professors and 34 military officers of captain or major rank.

Participants were graded on three papers and in presentation of three lectures each. Dr. Kahler completed the course with an A-plus grade of 979 points out of a possible 1,000.

Topics for Dr. Kahler's lectures included:

An objective survey of the United States — Mexican War and the Texas Revolution with attention to the Alamo and the Mexican castle Chapultepec as symbols of American and Mexican nationalism.

The French politics and French foreign policies between the two world wars. Stress was given to the building of the Maginot Line and the difference between the French mass universal armies and the U. S. voluntary armies. Theories and policies of General DeGaulle were also included.

The third lecture topic presented by Kahler was the history of Viet Nam to 1954.

Dr. Kahler presented papers on these topics: Is there a single cause for all wars up to 1815?; Are material or moral factors more crucial in military victories from 1815-1918?; Was World War II a continuation of Warld War I in Europe?

The seminar visited the Civil War battle fields of Antietem and Gettysburg on a field trip. Another trip was taken to Ft. Putnam, a battlefield of the War of American Independence.

Dr. Kahler, who is sponsor of the service fraternity Alpha Phi Omega, made use of a bamboo cane, which the fraternity had awarded him last spring, while on these field trips.

The participants of the seminar were selected on recommendations of military science staff members from universities and colleges where ROTC is taught. They represented every part of the nation.

Members were housed for the occasion in one of West Points bachelor officers quarters, Robert E. Lee Barracks.

Kahler said that he was amazed at the way news media had blown up the West Point cheating scandal. He said that the young men who had been caught cheating were isolated from other students in a barracks. The cheaters are referred to locally as the "Benedict Arnold Brigade," according to Dr. Kahler.

Going somewhere? Or been? The Canyon News wants to know about it — and so do its readers.

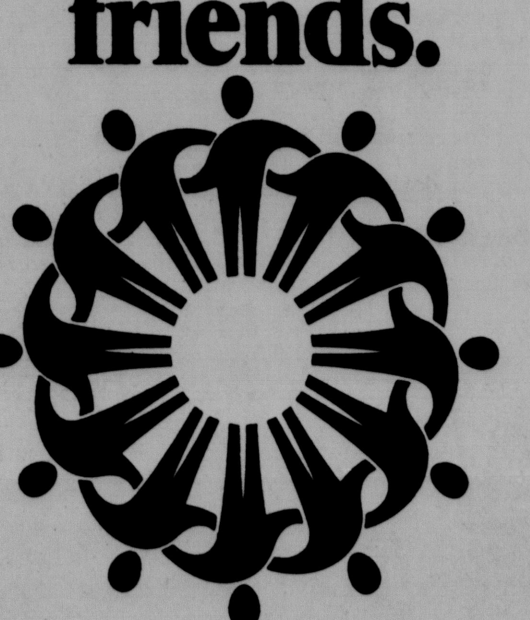
Join our circle of friends.



Why do we emphasize "circle of friends" while other banks emphasize their "full circle of service?" Because we're the bank that pays special attention to customers: all of them, in a great big way, no matter what service or services they use. The bank that thinks of customers as a circle of friends. And the nicest thing about our circle is that it's always open. There's always room for one more. How about you?

The reception for newcomers was held from 8-10 p.m. on Thursday evening in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Watkins at #13 Southridge Drive. The fete was to welcome new faculty members and wives with the executive board as hostesses for the occasion.

Backyard carnival for MD

Kevin Carroll, 14, became a full-fledged ringmaster yesterday when he and several other Canyon youngsters conducted a backyard Carnival Against Dystrophy.

Assisting Kevin in the fund-raising fete were Byron Curlee, 14; Andrea Curlee, 10; David Scott, 15; and Tim Grigsby, 14.

The Carnival was held at the home of the ringmasters parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Carroll of No. 2 Village Drive in Hunsley Hills.

Activities began at 9 a.m. and continued until 10 p.m. The event featured such games as Monopoly, Rebound, balloon relay, a treasure hunt, a penny sale, beanbag toss, fortune telling.

The group also provided such services as a book sale and bicycle rentals.

The Carnival was held to raise funds for the research and patient service programs of the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The idea for staging the event came from Ronald McDonald who is promoting MDA Carnivals on television and at local participating McDonald's Restaurants.

Last year, in cooperation with Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America, 42,239 Carnivals were held by children across the country, and over $1,372,572 was raised for MDAA's research and patient service programs.

Memories

Brazzil ends 25 year career

By JIM OWEN JONES

John Brazzil, County Extension Agent for Randall County since June 1, 1951, will end a 25-year career when he retires Aug. 31, this year.

Brazzil's employment with Randall County expands two and a half decades of what he calls a literal explosion in agricultural production and socio-economic development of the Panhandle. Development of irrigation, introduction of hybrid grain sorghum, giant leaps in agricultural technology, development of the cattle industry and Randall County's growth into a metropolitan complex all occurred during Brazzil's county agricultural agent career.

Paul Gross, district agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Amarillo, said Brazzil is one of the most responsible agents with whom he has worked.

"He is well accepted by the people he serves," says Gross. "The hallmark of his career has been professionalism. He has done outstanding landscape horticultural work and has been instrumental in working with the various agricultural commodity groups to increase economic returns for farmers, especially in wheat production."

Brazzil has taken graduate work at Texas A&M University and has attended Colorado State University and West Texas State University.

"I came to Randall County," Brazzil recalls, "during the beginning of the big development of irrigation on the High Plains. There had been preliminary work with irrigation in our area, but in 1951 and for the following five to six years things changed dramatically. We went from completely dry land farming to irrigation farming. By the end of the decade of the 50's, irrigation development reached its peak as far as good water supplies are concerned.

As a county agent, Brazzil had much to do with irrigation development in Randall County during the 50's. Holding irrigation meetings and advising farmers on water economics, Brazzil assisted farmers and industries alike wherever he could. If he didn't have the information he was always able to direct inquiries to the people who did.

Agricultural income skyrocketed in the county during the 1950's because of irrigation development which led to increased yields, more fertilizer use and other spin-off factors related to irrigation crop production.

The next big agricultural event, the county agricultural agent recalls, was the beginning of modern methods of grain sorghum production, especially with sorghum hybrid introduction in the mid-50's.

"This provided the ground work for significant agricultural developments later on," Brazzil said. Ready adaptation of hybrids into their farming gave Randall County producers a big inventory of feed grains which set the stage for the development of the cattle industry in the county.

"With this big inventory of grain," he added, "we saw big agribusiness interests and agricultural technology moving onto the Plains in the latter part of the 60's and early 70's. Our crops production increased tremendously.

"Of course," he said, "we continued to have a varied agricultural base in Randall County, such as swine and dairy industries. Believe it or not, we were the biggest dairy cattle county in West Texas for a number of years. Then the sugar beet industry moved in, and soybeans were introduced along with other minor crops.

Brazzil points to 1973 as the highlight for Randall County because "we probably reached our peak in grain sorghum, cattle and wheat production."

"It was the greatest agricultural income year we have had," he declares, "with 81 million dollars putting us in one of the top 10 counties in Texas."

Brazzil says the county has had problems since then because of dry years which stymied grain production and because of a drop in fed cattle prices, "although the county has still generally ranked in the top 15 counties in agricultural income in the state."

Randall County had been considered a rural county until about 1960, the year Brazzil says "the area became a part of the standard metropolitan area of Amarillo"

"With the expansion of Amarillo and the growth of west Texas, we have been in a growth pattern ever since, with both population and medium income rising."

The county agent is proud of the county's educational achievements.

"We have the highest school attendance per adult in Texas," he says, "with a 13-year median attendance for all adults in the county."

Referring to county Extension Service work, Brazzil believes the Extension Service has made a valuable contribution to the city by bringing technology and socio-economic information to the homeowner such as gardening, housing, horticulture, clothing, nutrition, health and other areas of family living.

He is quick to admit there have been some failures. He points to the frustration of not being able to find solutions to dwindling water supplies as they exist in the county. He says water is still a major concern because it affects not only agricultural growth but the financial and social stability of the area.

Of most satisfaction to the retiring agent has been the opportunity to watch the burgeoning youth programs in Randall County.

"When I came here," he recalls, "livestock shows were pretty much the extent of 4-H youth involvement. Since then, Potter and Randall county citizens and organizations have become involved and have offered tremendous support for all youth. A variety of activities now provide a wide range of opportunities for our young people.

"I have watched boys and girls come up through the years and take their place in the county as civic and government leaders," he adds with a gleam in his eye. "That is as rewarding as anything I've seen."

"There have been no big disappointments for me," he reminisced. "There have been some failures but I choose to look upon them as goals yet to be reached. For instance, the swine industry has not realized its fullest potential. And I have been somewhat disappointed with the trend of poultry production because sophisticated technology and markets and big production have all but replaced the farmers."

Brazzil said that during his 25 years, the role of the federal government has been varied. It moved into the area during the Korean War to encourage all-out production, and later introduced restrictive programs which have become a part of big agriculture.

"People have had lots of decisions to make during this time, but it has been a part of our maturing," he surmises.

Brazzil has seen hard times in the county such as the drought from 1952 to 1957.

"Severe problems touched just about everyone of us during those five dry years," he laments. "We had trouble with crops, livestock, and ultimately finances. Lots of people went out of business."

Brazzil said he has seen changes in attitudes of citizens over the years, especially toward agriculture.

"Most people," he says, "now know that agriculture is the base of the economy in our area and the source of our food and fiber. "

"Most people," he says, "now know that agriculture is the base of the economy in our area and the source of our food and fiber." It is a fact of life, he believes, that some people have yet to discover.

Of course, Brazzil has traveled lots of miles, all the roads, all the towns of Randall County and probably the entire High Plains. Retirement, he says, will not change him too much.

"Looking toward retirement," he quips, "is like a little experience I had when I first moved to Randall County. May wife and I parked next to the courthouse on this typical windy West Texas day in May, and waited for the wind to stop. But it never slowed a bit."

Brazzil thinks he'll never stop working.

Powerful herbs

Dried herbs are four times more powerful than fresh ones, and powdered herbs are twice as powerful as dried ones, Marilyn Haggard, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, says.

But she stressed that respect depends greatly on her.

Brenda says that being married gives an appearance of maturity. She feels that with David around everyone will feel more secure.

Kay says that the girls may feel more free to come to her for advice since she is younger. She feels that their continuing respect depends on whether she deserves it and continues to prove herself.

The duties of directors consist mainly of paper work and very little discipline. Both women agree that all duties center on the welfare of the residents.

According to Brenda, everything the director does is of service to the girls. She says that discipline is almost totally left up to the students.

Guidance is not as needed in Ruth Cross Hall as it is in freshman dorms, according to Brenda. Committees and councils in the dorm take most disciplinary problems to the University Judicial Board, which decides on the appropriate punishment.

Kay, who is in charge of freshman women students, feels that discipline is becoming a thing of the past as a duty for directors. Her main disciplinary concern is in settling roommate disputes.

Land and Hagar began their duties this summer. They are the universities first women dorm directors of such youth.

Brenda is busy with dorm activities and being a mother to Dixie while her husband is working on his master's degree at WTSU.

She and David are both 1974 graduates of WT with degrees in physical education. They come here from Dimmitt, where he coached in the schools.

Kay is attending classes part time on campus. She received her secretarial certificate from WTSU in 1973. She has been working as a secretary in the university administration for the past three years.

She came to Canyon from Pampa.

Turner fund opens

Accounts will be set up tomorrow for donations in memory of Suewelly Turner, who died Wednesday.

She was the wife of Don L. Turner, who reported news from Canyon for the Amarillo Globe-News for several months this past year.

Mrs. Turner died following the birth of their first child, a son, Scott Llyn. The baby is still listed in serious condition at Northwest Texas Hospital.

Donations are being asked from those who knew the Turners to help repay immense medical bills.

Chris Thomas is taking donations from the courthouse workers and Jessie Booth is taking donations from city workers.

Robert Friemels announce birth

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Friemel of Rt. 1, Box 339 in Canyon announce the Aug. 19 birth of a daughter, Ann Kristina, who weighed 7 pounds and measured 19 ½ inches at birth in Palo Duro Hospital.

The father is a farmer in the community and the Friemel family includes an older child, Jeremy Daniel, 22 months. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Walker, Jr. of Amarillo and Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Friemel of Umbarger.

The Cowboys plays today

"The Cowboys" starring John Wayne will conclude the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum's summer Sunday movie on Aug. 29.

Admission is free to the 2:30 p.m. performance in the second floor lecture room of the main museum building.

The memorable Wayne epic is one of the few where the long-time hero is killed. Wayne plays Will Anderson, who is forced to hire 11 young boys to help herd his cattle to the railhead 400 miles away. Hardship after hardship makes men of the boys, who by themselves must get the cattle to their destination.

Also starring in the western are Roscoe Lee Browne, Bruce Dern, Coleen Dewhurst and Slim Pickens.

Council plans events

Plans for the annual federated club's dinner this fall were set in motion at a meeting Wednesday of Federated Club Council members.

Francis Holman, new council chairman, presided at the meeting which was devoted to plans for the fall federated club activities of the community.

Club representatives attending the council session were Addalene Barker and Virginia Allen from Sue Hite Club; Susie Owens and Evelyn Frieze from Woman's Book Club and Harriet Brandon and Janie Loudder from Heritage Woman's Club. No representatives were present from the Canyon Study Club or University Study Club of Canyon.

The tentative planning for the federated club dinner set the event to be held Nov. 8 at the University Church of Christ fellowship hall for all federated club women of the city.

A major emphasis of the council women's discussion centered on the problems of local club women who serve at district and state levels of federated club work. The council discussed the individual federated club woman's "lack of time and finances" to serve at advanced capacities and voted to institute a Federated Fund to assist local club women elected to district and state levels. The council also noted that the Federated Fund money will come from several fund raising projects throughout the year.

The state junior director, Harriet Brandon, discussed an emphasis program to be included in the federated club's programs this fall. The project, to be known as "Hands Up," is a crime prevention effort alerting women to the need for engraving driver's license numbers on all valuable personal belongings and informing others of the community.

Other fall efforts of federated clubs will include "Poll Power" participation to encourage eligible voters to make their preference known in the general election. The club women will be offering transportation to the polls for those needing it.

The local federated club's council also discussed the state federation project of benefitting Girlstown, USA throughout the coming year.

Yearbooks needed from clubs

Yearbooks from all city clubs are a necessary item for the Canyon News office to keep the staff adequately informed of upcoming meetings and events in the community.

All clubs are urged to provide current yearbooks, or typewritten lists of meetings, dates, times and special projects to the News office as soon as clubs resume their fall schedule.

Follow-up reports on club meetings should be turned into the News office as soon as possible following meetings and should cover business actions taken, projects planned and a brief thorough report of the club's program.

Clear polaroid and other black-white photographs will be accepted for publication at the discretion of the editorial staff. The News staff will also take pictures at club meetings where possible and will take pictures of club groups in the News office with prior arrangements being made.

Although we accept phoned-in reports, it is preferred that club reports be typewritten whenever possible and arrive at the News office before publication deadlines: 10 a.m. on Wednesday (for Thursday's paper) or 10 a.m. on Saturday (for Sunday's paper). Society page deadline for club meetings, weddings, engagements and other social affairs is 12 noon on Thursday for the Sunday publication.

Marriage vows read

Double ring marriage vows were exchanged Saturday evening, August 28, between Linda Jo Whipple and Bobby Fite in ceremonies read at the Calvary Baptist Church of Canyon.

Rev. Jim Brown, pastor of the church, officiated at the nuptial exchange. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dan Whipple of Rt. 1, Box 154, Canyon and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Glen W. Fite of 511 Elsie in Canadian.

The wedding altar was flanked with a 15 bract candelabrum with matching spiraling candelabrum on each side. Blue and yellow daisies with white roses and accenting blue and yellow ribbons carried out the wedding theme with aisle candles in brass holders. Hurricane globes with greenery and yellow ribbon bows and streamers marked the wedding aisle. The unity candle was arranged on a pedestal with white tapers on each side for the service. Candlelighters were Amy and Cindy Muir of Canadian.

The Wedding Prayer, More and Whither Thou Goest were presented by the soloist, Mrs. Sharon Howard. Organist, Mrs. Judy Pendergrass, accompanied and provided traditional wedding marches and background music for the ceremony.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal floor length wedding gown of nylon organza and re-embroidered Chantilly lace over bridal taffeta. The wedding dress was designed with a high neckline, empire styled waist, long Bishop sleeves and the bell shaped skirt was full in the back. Inserts of lace enhanced with satin ribbon complemented the neckline, bodice, sleeves and skirt of the wedding gown. A wide border of lace framed the hemline and the full back of the wedding gown was swept into a Chapel length wedding train. Her veil of imported illusion was bordered with matching Chantilly lace and held to a lace coif. The bridal bouquet featured white daisies and white roses with accenting baby's breath and yellow rosebuds.

Bridal attendants wore pale blue dotted swiss dresses with pale blue hats decorated with white daisies and blue ribbon with streamers down the back. The dresses were styled with empire waists, long sleeves and bell skirts. The matron of honor, Mrs. Kathy Jordan, sister of the bride, carried a bouquet of yellow and blue daisies accented with yellow ribbon. Other bridal attendants carried blue and yellow daisy bouquets accented with blue ribbon and baby's breath.

Also attending the bride were Miss Janet Sluder of Bushland, Miss Edythe McCurry of Amarillo, Miss Becky Gooch of Pampa and Mrs. Pam Luman of Amarillo.

Flower girl was the bride's niece, Jill Jordan of Oklahoma City, who was escorted by the bridegroom's nephew, T. J. Muir of Canadian. Ringbearer was Doug Muir of Canadian.

Mark Spann of Panhandle served as best man. Groomsmen were the bride's brother, Dan Whipple of Canyon, Randy Fewell of Pampa, Jeff Cullender of Canadian and Roger Brown of Spearman.

Ushering were Frank Muir and Bill Muir, both of Canadian and brothers of the bridegroom, and Carl Robinson of Spearman.

A four tiered wedding cake decorated with blue and white and featuring a pair of doves on the top tier was served at the reception following in fellowship hall of the church. The reception table was covered with white dotted swiss with chiffon overlay and drape and held a silver punchbowl and tray with a silver coffee service and silver candelabra.

Punch, coffee, cake, mints and nuts were served by Debbie Muir and Marcia Muir, both of Canadian, Debbie Tidwell of Canyon and Elaine Frische of Hereford.

The bride is a graduate of Canyon High School and is employed with Dr. David Bechtol of Canyon. The bridegroom is a student at West Texas State University and employed with Western Sales and Testing. He graduated from Canadian High School.

The couple will be residing in Canyon.

MISS CONGENIALITY — Cindy Brooks of Canyon, shown with mistress of ceremonies Sharon Garrison, was voted "Miss Congeniality" at the annual Wheatheart of the Nation beauty pageant in Perryton Saturday. Miss Brooks also won fourth runner-up in the national contest.

Wedding read here

Bouquets of mixed summer flowers flanked each side of the church altar of First United Methodist Church Saturday evening, August 28, as Miss Sarah Jane Schacht and David Lynn Cameron pledged double ring marriage vows.

Rev. Bill Kent, church pastor, officiated at the nuptial service. The wedding altar was backed with a large arched candelabrum and the traditional kneeling bench was used during the service.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. F. O. Schacht and the late Fritz Schacht of Lockney. She is a spring graduate of West Texas State University's School of Nursing and has been employed for the summer at Lockney General Hospital. She will begin employment with Palo Duro Hospital in Canyon in September.

The bridegroom is coordinator of Christian Education for Canyon First United Methodist Church. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Cameron of Stratford.

Preceding the marriage service, Gary Thrasher of Amarillo sang The Greatest of These Is Love. The vocalist also presented the Irish folk tune Be Thou My Vision as a prayer hymn. The procession was Trumpet Voluntary by Purcell and the recessional selection was The Heavens Declare The Glory of God by Marcello.

A candlelight chiffon gown was worn by the bride as she was escorted and presented in marriage by her brother, Clar Schacht of Kismet, Kansas. The wedding gown featured a molded bodice of re-embroidered Alencon lace and English net with tiny seed pearls adorning the front of the mandarian neckline. The wedding gown had long Juliet sleeves emphasized with matching Alencon lace and English net. The empire styled waist was framed by a sheer layered skirt which extended into a full chapel train.

The bride's matching wedding veil was made by her mother and was a double tiered arrangement of candlelight bridal illusion edged with seed pearls and attached to an Alencon lace halfcap. Her bridal bouquet, which was also arranged by her mother, featured gardenias and white roses with her father's wedding band nestled into the bridal flowers.

The bridegroom wore a candlelight tailcoat trimmed with brown velvet for the ceremony.

The bride's sister, Margaret Schacht, served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Sandra Carey of Odessa and Tamra Cameron of Stratford, sister of the bridegroom. The bridal attendants wore floor length gowns of apricot crepe with flared skirts flowing from the waists. The dresses featured caped collars and each bridal attendant carried a bouquet of mixed summer flowers tied with brown velvet ribbon. They wore candlelight picture hats banded with brown velvet and complemented with small clusters of flowers matching their bouquets.

Jimmy Cameron of Dumas, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man and groomsmen were Otto Schacht of Bryan, brother of the bride, and Wilson Holman of Levelland. Ushering were Jerry Howard of Canyon and Jimmy Teeter of Booker.

The bride's family hosted the wedding reception which followed in the church parlor. A rehearsal dinner was held for the wedding party at the Yum-Yum Tree Restaurant in Canyon Friday evening with the groom's parents as hosts.

Following a wedding trip to Colorado, the couple will be establishing their home at 521 12th Avenue in Canyon. For travel, the bride and bridegroom wore matching burgundy suits made especially for their trip.

Instructors added

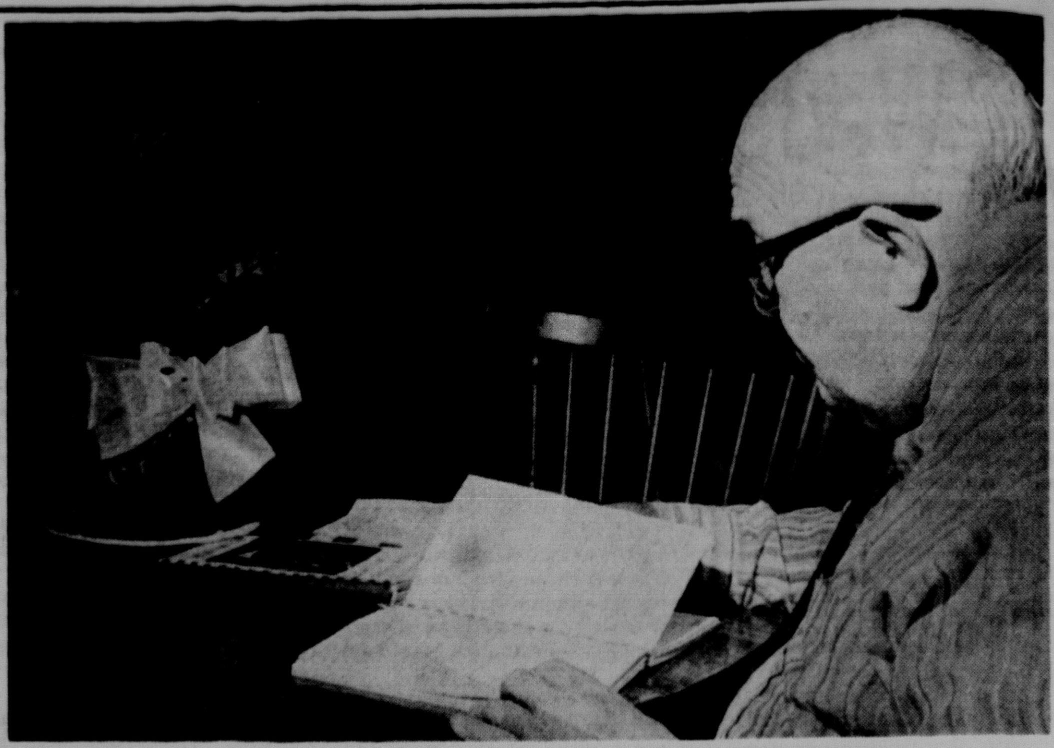
West Texas State University's School of Nursing will add four instructors to its faculty this fall.

Leland Boyd Duckett, a University of Texas School of Nursing master's degree candidate, is also a 1975 nursing graduate of West Texas State. He earned his nursing diploma from the Shannon School of Nursing, and has attended San Angelo College and Amarillo College. Duckett is a former medical-surgical instructor for the Northwest Texas Hospital School of Nursing.

Joan Michelle Hodge received her baccalaureate degree in nursing from West Texas State in 1975, and her master's degree from the University of Texas in 1976. She was an instructor in psychiatric nursing at Northwest Texas Hospital School of Nursing for six years.

Another WTSU and UT graduate, Mary Cecile Truitt, served as a WTSU clinical instructor last year. She has been an operating room instructor for the Veteran's Hospital in Indianapolis and at the Jennie Stuart Memorial Hospital, where she was also assistant hospital supervisor. Mrs. Truitt was hospital supervisor at Comanche County Memorial Hospital in Lawton, Oklahoma from 1968-70.

Former Amarillo College nursing instructor, Dorothy Ann Kennedy, received her bachelor's degree from Texas Christian University, and her master's degree in education from WTSU in 1974. She was the senior team leader at High Plains Hospital from 1968-69 and staff nurse at Texas Tech University from 1957-60.



Retired mail carrier, Windy Miller, inspects his retirement project which is a cookbook collection of his favorite recipes.

Two year needlework project almost ready

Needlework is having a rebirth throughout the nation and Canyon is no exception for the artistic revival. The pastime of needlework, knitting and projects of that sort were once thought of as solely the work of middle-aged and elderly ladies.

Today some 45 million Americans — that's nearly one in every five — spend a part of their spare time with needlework projects and other creative efforts.

From teens to senior citizens — including both male and female — the needlework rage is being revived in the form of old fashioned needlework get togethers for quilting and the making of wall hangings.

In Canyon, the Fine Arts Club has been involved in a two year project to display the history of the county on a wall hanging which will be presented to Canyon City Library soon.

The wall hanging, done solely by hand stitchery, has been under the guidance of Claudia Neelley, project chairman.

Many of the figures in the hanging have been filled to give a dimensional effect. The hanging itself is composed of a number of different historic scenarios which are being assembled together to form one large wall hanging.

Fine Arts Club members would probably agree that "needlework answers the individual's need for being creative and in this day of mass-production is an expression of oneself".

A donation to the military science scholarship funds is accepted by LTC Charles Laakso from Don Max Vars, from First National Bank.

Miller Presents Relish Recipe

W. E. Miller who has been known as "Windy" throughout the community for many years has spent his time since retirement as a postal mail carrier compiling a cookbook filled with "recipes for everyone".

Aptly titled the "Happy Cooker", the book contains 649 recipes along with bits of poetry and a metric conversion table. Published by the Cookbook Publishers, Inc. of Kansas City, Ks., Miller's first cookbook printing amounted to 510 copies of which many have already been sold to neighbors, kin and friends.

Miller spent 40 years with the Canyon Post Office previous to his retirement and at the time of retirement had spent his past 25 years (1941-66) as a rural carrier for Route 1, Canyon.

Seven main divisions are contained in the cookbook including Main Dishes, Soup — Salad — Vegetables, Bread — Rolls — Pastry, Cakes — Cookies — Desserts, Candy — Jelly — Preserves, Appetizers — Pickles — Relishes, and Beverages — Miscellaneous.

Included in the "Happy Cooker" are some unusual recipes, seldom found in cookbooks, according to Miller. He has included special recipes for Dutch Honey and Honey Syrup, along with Pickled Peaches, a recipe for Strawberry — Buttermilk Ice Cream and Beef Jerkey.

He says that he has always "loved to eat" and his wife, Beulah, is a home economics major and homemaker herself.

Throughout the years, Mr. Miller has enjoyed his own turn at helping with the kitchen chores and cooking for the family.

One of his favorite recipes included in the book is one from his own mother's collection which follows:

LINDY RELISH

2 medium heads cabbage
8 medium size onions
9 green peppers
3 red peppers
8 medium size carrots
12 large green tomatoes

Grind and mix together. Put ¾ cup salt over mixture and let stand 3 hours. Drain and add:

1 Tablespoon celery salt
1 Tablespoon mustard seed
6 cups sugar
½ gallon white vinegar

Mix well and seal in sterilized jars. Do Not Cook.

Enrollment in ROTC is not a prerequisite for team membership.

All WTSU students are eligible to try-out and WTSU varsity letters are awarded to those students qualifying for the team.

Rifle team competition will be conducted on an indoor range utilizing a small bore, .22 calibre rifle. High quality equipment, ammunition, and rifles are provided at no cost to those trying out for the team and to team members.

Matches this school year include competitions in Roswell, NM., Lawton & Goodwell, OK., Abilene & El Paso, TX.

New magazine at WTSU

To help fill student needs, the Student Activities Council of West Texas State University is sponsoring publication of "Sunrise," a new magazine.

"The need for a new campus point of view first prompted the magazine," said Keith Ribnick, Sunrise editor.

The magazine will be published every two months during the academic year.

Featuring information related to WTSU and the surrounding area, the September issue, which was circulated Friday, lists off-campus housing and a student needs list.

A six-page reference guide, the needs list names services available to students in Amarillo and Canyon.

Also included in the magazine will be a series of articles on the Activities Center and SAC. "WT Marquee," a description of available campus entertainment, such as SAC activities, will also be featured. Regular features of the magazine will be "University Information Service," outlining campus services, and "Canyon City Limits," a humorous column.

Western dancing

Due to student demand, instruction in western dancing will be offered during the fall semester at West Texas State University.

Offered by the department of health, physical education, and recreation, the course will be taught by Mrs. Mary Hill, an instructor in the department, from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday in Room 202E of the Activities Center.

The course will feature basic instruction in dances familiar to the Panhandle area such as "Cotton-Eyed Joe," "Heel-Toe Polka" and the "Two Step."

"We offered the course last year on a voluntary basis and the students really wanted to take the course for credit," Mrs. Hill said.

Watering know how will cut bill some

With hot summer weather at hand, the home gardener needs to check his watering methods to keep the water bill down.

"First, check the methods of application," advises Everett Janne, landscape horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "There is no need to apply water any faster than the soil will soak it up. Sandy type soils will usually take water almost as fast as it can be applied, but tight clay soils take up water slowly. Select the method of application that best fits your soil."

Using a mulch wherever possible also saves on water usage, says the horticulturist. A good mulch conserves moisture, prevents compaction, keeps soil temperature lower and reduces the weed population. Since organic mulches tend to decompose or sometimes wash away, they should be checked frequently and replaced where necessary.

While night-time watering increases the chance for plant diseases, it does allow for more efficient use of water since evaporation rates are lowest.

"Another important practice in the wise use of water is to do a thorough job of watering each time it becomes necessary to irrigate," emphasizes Janne. "A thorough watering at 7 — to — 10 — day intervals encourages deep root penetration and full use of available soil moisture. Just because plants wilt during the heat of the day doesn't mean the soil is dry. Test the soil's moisture content with a soil probe or stake to determine if the soil is dry rather than depending on the appearance of plants."

Regardless of the size of the water bill, don't stop watering completely as plants can die due to moisture stress, especially during hot, windy weather. Just use this precious resource as efficiently as possible, reminds Janne.

Pensions eyed in new course

A course in pensions, trusts and insurance will be offered for the first time by the department of business administration.

Taught by Dr. Zeke Marchant, the course is designed for middle and top management levels.

"Managers learn about management but often they soon realize they don't know anything about insurance," Dr. Marchant said.

Pensions, annunities, retirement benefits, trusts and insurance will be included in the 55991-1 level course, Seminar in Insurance, held on Wednesday at 7 p.m. in Amarillo.

Adult scouting meet Wednesday

A neighborhood meeting for all adults interested in the Girl Scouting and Brownie program for girls of the city will be held Wednesday morning, Sept. 1.

The adult meeting will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Canyon Girl Scout Building.

Karen Sheffy, local leader, reports that registration slips have been issued through the schools to all girls so that those interested may sign up for Girl Scouts and Brownies this year.

Other girls and adults desiring further information about the scouting program should contact Mrs. Sheffy at 655-4642.

Randall Burtons have infant son

Mr. and Mrs. Randall L. Burton of Rt. 4, Box 221, Canyon announce the August 19 birth of a son weighing 7 pounds, 7 ounces at Palo Duro Hospital in Canyon.

The baby measured 20 inches at birth and has been named Russell Stewart. The father is employed with Buck's Sporting Goods.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart of Odessa and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burton of Canyon.

Green fund totals $965

Approximately $965 has been contributed to the scholarship fund established at West Texas State University in memory of Dr. Jimmie Green, who died during the summer.

Dr. Green, 46, professor and head of the department of plant science, died of an apparent heart attack June 9. Dr. Ron Thomason has been named as acting department head.

Dr. Green had been with the university since 1954 and received the Faculty Excellence Award in 1974. He was named as outstanding professor in the school of agriculture in 1970 and 1973.

Dr. Ray Hinders, president of the Agriculture Development Association, said he hopes the memorial fund will reach $2,500 to $3,000 to make possible $200 scholarship awards from the West Texas State University Agriculture Foundation.

Donations to the Jimmie Green Memorial Scholarship Fund may be sent to Box 775, WT Station, Canyon, TX 79016.

Apply now

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service of Randall County will begin taking applications tomorrow for cost-sharing funds on conservation practices.

The ASCS will use these funds to aid farmers in laying underground irrigation pipeline and in other farming conservation measures.

Funds for the program are allocated to the ASCS by the United States Department of Agriculture. The service pays a percentage of costs depending on the size of the project.

Deadline for applications is Sept. 8.

Milk volume is down now

Records from the Texas Milk Market Order indicate that both the volume of milk and the number of dairymen delivering milk on the Texas market is down from a year ago.

This analysis comes from Dr. Randall Stelly, economist for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The total volume of milk in the Texas market was almost 297 million pounds in July, down 5 million pounds from July, 1975. However, the amount of milk used in Class I (fluid use) was 69 per cent of all producer milk, up 3.89 per cent from last July.

According to Stelly, there was a decrease of 771 dairy producers delivering milk on the Texas Milk Market Order this July compared to July, 1975. However, he points out that the 3,340 producers still delivering milk are getting larger — on the average. While producer receipts for the first seven months of 1976 were 21 million pounds or about 1 per cent less than for the same period last year, average daily milk deliveries per producer increased 586 pounds — from 2,370 to 2,956 pounds.

A look at milk prices indicated that producers in Zone I (Dallas — Fort Worth area) of the market order received $10.62 per hundred pounds for milk (at 3.5 per cent butter) used in Class I. Producers in other parts of Texas received various adjustments to this price, with those in the Rio Grande Valley receiving as much as 75 cents more per hundredweight, notes Stelly.

Learn to play backgammon

Backgammon, which is one of the oldest games of recorded history, will be included in the Community Education classes being offered this fall through the Canyon Independent School District.

Sue Ann Davis will be the course instructor when the class begins on Sept. 14. The class will be held from 7-9 p.m. on Mondays for a period of four weeks with a class fee of $5.

Those planning to take the backgammon course are asked to provide their own sets when possible. The game, which is the newest craze in family games, is a game that rewards skill but is dependent on luck. The average game takes from 5-6 minutes and has been played for many years in countries abroad.

Mrs. Davis notes that the game is good family entertainment and the Davis' eleven year old son, Matt, is one of the best players around their home.

Backgammon has for years been known as the "game on the backside of the checker board" and is just now catching on in the United States, according to the instructor.

Orienteers seek members

The West Texas State University orienteering club, Panhandle Orienteers, is seeking members for the coming year.

A new member meeting will be held in the student lounge of the military science building, Sept. 2, at 5 p.m.

Orienteering, a rapidly growing outdoor sport imported from Sweden, has just recently come to WTSU. An initial contingent of three contestants from WTSU went to the Southern Region Orienteering Meet in Louisiana last year and returned with two trophies and a lot of enthusiasm. Since then a club has been formed and grown to over twenty members; a University Orienteering team has been formed; and, intercollegiate competition has been entered.

In the coming year, the Panhandle Orienteers plan to enter a minimum of seven intercollegiate meets and to host two meets in nearby Palo Duro Canyon. Outside meets carry the WTSU team to Colorado, New Mexico and Louisiana as well as to various schools within Texas.

Maj. Telfair stressed that the Orienteering Club and the WTSU Orienteering Team are open to all students and faculty regardless of age, sex, major, etc. No experience or special physical condition is required, only an appreciation for the outdoors and a desire for companionship and friendly competition.

No answers at hearing

A good many of the approximately 200 persons at the public hearing Wednesday night would liked to have sent the six or eight postal service officials packing.

And they could have taken their proposed new post office with them.

The hearing was called to present plans for the proposed new building after opposition forces earlier had put a fight to either change the proposed location or, better, to stop the project all-together.

After a three hour meeting, however, the realization became apparent that the decision would be made, not in Canyon, but in Oklahoma City.

In addition to those fighting the new post office, the crowd in the community center included a sizable group of boosters.

The Canyon Chamber of Commerce and the First United Pentacostal Church both supported the proposal.

Opponents included Jim Palmer, Mary Parker, and Ann Brown.

Representing the U. S. Postal Service were Lee Roy Moreland, Canyon postmaster; C. T. Davis, Amarillo postmaster and area supervisor; Dale Fowlkes, district supervisor from Oklahoma City and a former Canyon resident; W. T. Brady, head of the post office real estate division in Dallas and Gil Downing, architectural consultant from Dallas.

Marjorie Harrington, from Rep. Jack Hightower's office, attended but did not take part in the discussion.

The proposed building will be situated on an L-shaped plot bounded on the north by 4th Avenue, on the east by the Pentacostal Church, on the south by 5th Avenue and on the west by 13th Street.

Two stucco houses facing 4th Avenue will have to be torn down and two frame houses and a stucco one will be torn down on Fifth Avenue. A brick home on the corner of 5th and 13th will be left.

Traffic plans call for customer entry from 13th Street and exit on 4th Avenue. A mail drop will also enter and exit on 4th.

Employees and service vehicles will enter and exit on 5th Avenue.

The proposed building will double the working space of the present post office, officials said. It will contain about 9,000 square feet, which is the approximate size of the present building and its unfinished and unused basement.

Cost for the new post office is estimated at $581,000. This includes $486,000 for construction and furnishings and $95,000 cost and trade for the land.

The new construction will cost less than remodeling the present building, which would have to be gutted, Brady said.

The land package was put together by First National Bank, Brady said, and will include a trade for the present post office. The building and cash together will total $95,000, Brady said.

Disclosure of the proposed deal with the bank drew criticism but postal officials defended the move.

"There is nothing hidden about it, it's all above board," Brady said. "It is a good deal."

The meeting began with postal plans being presented. Next speakers pro and con voiced their views and then questions and answers were given.

Palmer, the most active opponent of the post office who has traveled to Oklahoma City and Dallas to present his case, objected to the post office on historical grounds.

Fifth Avenue contains some of the oldest homes in Canyon, he said. The places along the tree-lined street are well-preserved and well-cared. Putting the post office on that block will lead to the eventual widening of 5th and the destruction of a historical neighborhood, Palmer said.

Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Brown both objected to the cost of the project.

"I wouldn't build a new home if I owed $550 billion," Mrs. Brown said.

"It is absolute insanity to build a new facility no bigger than we have," said Fletcher Sims. "We can't continue to spend money. You can't spend forever."

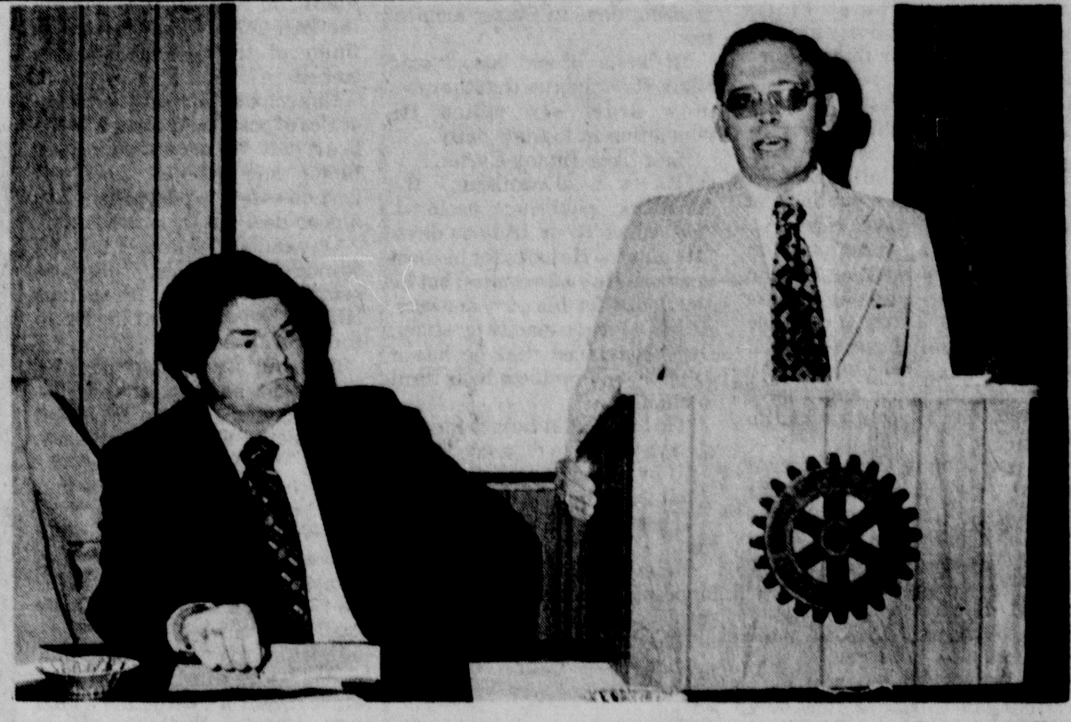
Phil Langen, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce supported the proposal.

"Regardless of political persuasion, I believe each one of us wants to see the government spend our money in a frugal manner. However, the money for a new postal facility in Canyon has already been budgeted and we will not stop the federal spending by rejecting this construction — rather, we would be saying that 'we don't want a new facility in Canyon built to serve our needs'. We would be saying 'build it elsewhere, either in Dimmitt or Dumas, but not here'."

Construction funds come from a capital improvement budget financed by the sale of bonds, postal officials said.

Finally, one questioner asked "Are we trying to decide if we will have a new post office or not?"

"No," said Fowlkes, "That decision will be made in Oklahoma City."



Canyon postmaster Lee Roy Moreland outlines plans for a proposed new post office building as W. H. Brady, Dallas real estate specialist for the postal service mentally plans his presentation at a public hearing held here this week.

Good business seen in swap

There is nothing unusual in the land deal tentatively arranged between the Postal Service and First National Bank, a postal official said this week.

Exchanges are frequently made in acquiring property, said W. H. Brady of the real estate division of the Postal Service in Dallas.

The bank already owns six lots in the site and has proposed to acquire the rest.

Brady disclosed the tentative arrangements between the bank and the post office at a public hearing here this week to explain plans to build a new post office.

The new building is proposed between Fourth and Fifth Avenues and 13th and 14th Streets.

The total value of the land exchange will be $95,000, Brady said.

The bank will swap property they own now or will acquire as a result of the deal in exchange for the old post office building and enough cash to make the package equal $95,000, Brady said.

An Amarillo appraiser is completing final appraisal on both the post office and the bank lots.

"If both figures are the same, we'll have an even trade," Brady said. "If the property is less valuable that means it is not a good deal. If the property is worth more, then it's a good business proposition."

Brady said the purchase price will not exceed $95,000, and maybe less.

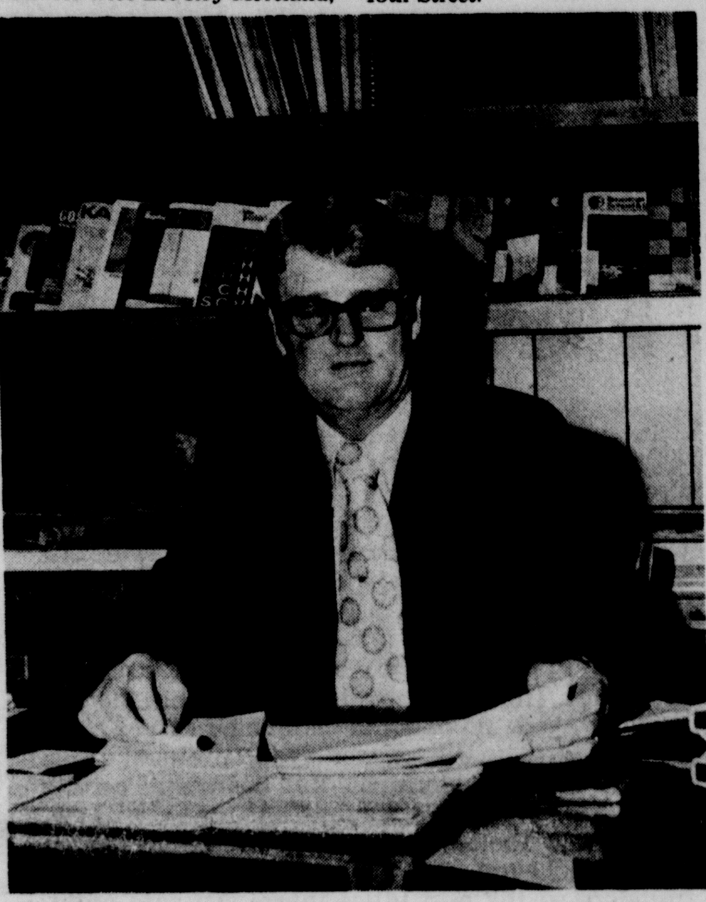
"If it is a favorable exchange, we would recommend it; if not, we'd have to go back to the bank and talk some more."

Brady said his office is still working as if the sale would be final. But, actually the decision to build the post office will come later from Oklahoma City or Memphis.

"If there is too much opposition, they may decide to drop it," he said.

The comments from the public hearing will be studied, he said, before recommendations are completed.

"We're still going ahead in case we get the green light."



Dr. Sam Thompson

These 'drom moms' are awfully young

By BEVERLY MCCARLEY

This fall semester, two WTSU dorms will be run by two young directors. Kay Hagar, 23, and Brenda Land, 24, are beginning their first year in their new positions.

Though the age-old connotation "dorm mother" may not exactly fit the two young ladies, Brenda is in reality a dorm mother. She lives with her husband, David, and their two-year-old daughter, Dixie.

Brenda said she would not be bothered if she were referred to as "dorm mother". "I guess since I am a mother, I wouldn't mind the title."

Kay Hagar, on the other hand, is single and objects to the concept of "mother." She hopes that with younger directors, the title "dorm director" will catch on.

Neither of the two new directors feel that the slim age difference between them and dorm residents will create problems. They both feel that their performance will determine the amount of respect they will be given, not their age.

According to Kay, respect and trust will be given to any person with a good personality, attitude and, of course, position no matter what their age.

Brenda feels that the girls in the dorm will probably feel better with a younger director who is more in tune with their problems.

Kick off set for boosters

Canyon Booster Club will kick off another year with an organization meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the First National Bank Building.

Canyon High football players and cheerleaders will be introduced.

One of the club projects already begun this year is the chartering of a bus to take spectators to the Monterey Lubbock game Sept. 4. Phil Langen, club president said.

One bus, and possibly two, will go to the game, he said. Bus tickets are $6.

Other projects this year include providing posters of the varsity players to place in store windows and posting signs at the players' yards reading "This is the home of fighting Eagle . . .".

Money raised by the club usually buys one item of equipment not included in the school's athletic budget.

Prosecuter need probed

A bi-city county group of government entities agreed Wednesday in Amarillo to form a study organization to look at the possibility of obtaining a grant to hire a special prosecutor for Potter and Randall Counties.

In the meeting were the commissions of Amarillo and Canyon.

The move was suggested by Amarillo City Commissioner Clay Briggs. Also discussed was governmental support for Kids, Inc.

No change in schools

Although the Canyon Independent School District has a new superintendent, there is likely to be little change soon in the way things are done now.

"I operate on history for awhile," Dr. Sam Thompson said. "I'll study the present program and if the program is meeting the needs of children and young people, then I'll have no recommendation for change."

But he does have a goal to increase the involvement of the community with the school system.

"I do have a goal of getting the community involved in education," he said. "And I think I have a system to do that.

"I want to utilize the talent at WTSU. I think they could put their skills to use for us."

Thompson said he strongly believes that schools are for children and young people.

"Everything we do should enrich their program," he said.

He stressed the importance of basic education, the skills of reading and arithmetic, but every course, he said, should be career related.

Career education is something different from vocational education, Thompson said.

"Career education relates to every subject," he said. The uses of English, math and other everyday courses in later life should be told so that students can see the need for the information.

In elementary grades, career education consists primarily of making students aware of opportunities.

Junior high is a time for awareness and exploration, he said, and in senior high, students should add skills.

Thompson sees the key to success in education to a close relationship of teachers and parents.

If there is anything different about education today, it is the deterioration of the parental interest in the schools, he believes.

"Are kids different? Some say they are but maybe we're all different. We all had our little hang-ups. Kids aren't a great deal different now.

"But they haven't had the support of parents. In Irving there were a lot of broken homes, therefore I don't believe the students had the parent's interest and support in the schools. If there is a difference, that may be it," he said.

Thompson said he hoped that parents would take any problems with their children to the proper source. Probably, they should begin with the child's teacher, he said.

"Start with the teacher and if that doesn't solve the problem, then go to the principal and then to me or to the board if necessary", he said.

Thompson was assistant superintendent of Irving schools before coming here in mid-August to replace Jerry Jacobs.

He grew up in Shamrock and was a barber there for some years.

He graduated from Frank Phillips College with an associate degree, got a BS and MS at West Texas and a Ph.D at the University of Texas.

He has done graduate work at the University of Houston, North Texas State, East Texas State and Texas Women's University.

He and his wife, the former Ruth Stimmel of East St. Louis, have two children. Their son, Tim is a freshman pre-dental student at Texas Tech and their

Canyon North gets county okay on road

Randall County commissioners Friday in a called meeting agreed to conditions under which it would accept roads in Canyon North, amended the budget and asked for another draft of an ambulance service agreement.

Attorney Don Dean appearing on behalf of developer A. W. Lair presented a contract agreeing to a 4-point plan designed to obtain acceptance from the court.

1. The developer agreed to improve drainage as shown in plans drawn by City Engineer Bill McMorries.

2. To begin as soon as contractor and equipment are available to proof-roll existing pavement bringing the roadway to stability.

3. To remove all weeds, apply commercial weed killer and patch any areas where needed.

4. To lay two courses of full strength asphalt to bring the total asphalt thickness to a minimum of four inches and as far as practical to correct the crown in the paving which work shall be completed before Aug. 31, 1977.

The agreement was approved by commissioners with the understanding that a bond of $40,000 would be supplied by the developer. Commissioners stressed that the improvements set forth in the agreement still do not bring the roads up to county standards but only to a level at which the county will accept them.

Commissioners approved an amended budget presented by County Manager Carroll Wilson and Auditor Bill Tirey. District Attorney Randall Sherrod said they could legally do so since new positions had been created and it was necessary to shift money from one fund to another since adoption of the current budget.

Also, since the budget for the current year was adopted the fiscal year has been changed from Jan. to Dec. 31 to Oct. 1 to Sept. 30.

After an appearance by representatives of Palo Duro Hospital District and the city of Canyon, the court agreed to prepare a contract with all three entities being named as parties in an agreement with Metropolitan Ambulance Service.

LaWayne Guengerich told the court that because of a misunderstanding in April, an additional $240 would be added to the subsidy tab being picked up by the county, city and hospital district for ambulance service.

This figure was the amount already being paid by the county for service in South Amarillo before Metropolitan began serving the rest of the county last April.

Metropolitan decided to forego the $240 a month when it was agreed that the firm could charge rates approved recently by the city of Amarillo which are slightly higher than those being charged in South Randall County.

The court also voted to pay Southwestern Public Service Company $4,689 for moving a group of utility poles.

A called meeting of the court is set for next Friday to discuss salaries of county employees.

Dee Griffin: raise Bruse, but not Burks

Randall County tax assessor-collector will get a hefty 25 percent increase in salary but only on condition that Mrs. Audrey Bruse is re-elected.

At least this is how things will unfold if Commisioner Dee Griffin has his way.

Griffin has expressed discontent with the salary of Mrs. Bruse on several occasions. Friday he was more outspoken.

He said the court should wait until after the election in Nvember and if Mrs. Bruse is returned to office raise her salary from $12,960 a year to a whopping $16,200 making her the highest paid county official on the payroll.

Mrs. Bruse is a Republican and Griffin is a Democrat.

What to do if fellow Democrat Bob Burks is elected to the office? Leave the pay just like it is quoth Democrat Griffin.

It was Republican John Fulgenzi who led the vocal dissent on the court. "The people elect the tax assessor-collector," said Fulgenzi, "And the pay should be the same no matter who is elected."

The next crunch might be yours

The opening of the schools and university has produced the annual traffic crunch, Canyon police chief Al Stewart observed this week.

He expects a sharp increase in the number of traffic accidents for the next several weeks.

City police will take some measures to monitor traffic, he said, but many of the problems are beyond police control.

For example, the streets skirting Canyon High, a highly congested area, were never designed for the amount of traffic that travels past the school, he said.

Removing the kindergarten from Rex Reeves Elementary helped congestion at Rex Reeves and dumped it on Sixth Avenue, Stewart said.

As soon as the signs are ready, they will be posted along Sixth at the kindergarten, making that a 'No parking — loading and unloading only' area, Stewart said. The speed limit during school will be set at 20 mph.

In addition, policemen will hand out warning letters to motorists double parked at the elementary school or kindergarten explaining the hazard there and asking for cooperation.

School zone speed laws are back in effect and are being enforced, he said.

Stewart reminded motorists to drive with particular care for the next several weeks. Watch for children darting from between parked cars or running out into the street.

Although the accident rate traditionally increases in September, few of the wrecks cause injuries.

Two years of needlework is almost completed by the Canyon Fine Arts Club which is preparing a historic wall hanging for the Canyon City Library which depicts the growth of Randall County. Club members stitching on the final phase of the project this past week were from left, Anita Low, Helen Harrell, Margaret Harper, president, Audrey Sanders and Claudia Neelley, project chairman. The unveiling is expected next month at a special event being arranged for by the Canyon City Library Board.

Money still coming to aid Buffs

Money is still coming in to the special fund begun last year to try to bail WTSU intercollegiate athletics out of debt.

So far, a total of $133,665.63 has been received, in excess of the $125,000 planned, said Dr. Jack Bullock, assistant to the president for intercollegiate athletics.

But, he says he has no doubt but that the fund drive will be undertaken each year.

There is a projected deficit as of June 30 for the year ending Tuesday of $131,534.51. The deficit will likely be greater than that, however, since actual expenditures are running ahead of projections in some funds.

This year's budget did not reflect the fund drive.

WT athletics got in trouble last year when the board of regents said the program had to live within its means. One idea was to pull West Texas out of the Missouri Valley Conference but the successful fund drive staved off that result for at least a year.

The only program expected to show a profit this year is basketball, which, as of June 30 was in the black by $8,766.10. This figure will be reduced, Bullock said, because actual expenditures have been greater than those allowed for.

Bullock pointed out that in judging the revenue and expenditures of the sports, the athletic administration costs must be proportioned to each sport. Basketball picks up the tab for 30 percent of the cost of administration and football carries 70 per cent.

Expected deficits for other sports are:

football — $7,530.38
tennis — $6,151.61
track — $6,329.93
golf — $2,215.66
women's athletics — $1,319.09
administration — $116,753.94

The budget for the year starting Sept. 1 shows an expected balance of $75.

Revenues, including the special fund, are estimated at $682,550. Expenditures are projected to be $682,475.

Football is budgeted for $258,408 with a deficit of $38,158.

Basketball is expected to make $5,000 above the $145,000 budgeted for it.

The tennis program is projected to cost $17,989, with a $5,639 deficit.

Track will have $20,734 to spend with a $534 deficit foreseen.

Golf is projected to go $45 over its budget of $9,295 and women's athletics is budgeted to break even at $37,000.

Athletic administration will cost $93,549 and have a deficit of $85,549.

Teen is still badly injured

A Canyon teenager is still in serious condition at the intensive care unit at Northwest Texas Hospital as a result of an auto accident, Aug. 13.

Mike Burkett was the most seriously injured of five youths in a one car accident on VFW Road.

He was a passenger in the vehicle driven by Brian Pratt.

Appraisers moving in

Southwest Appraisal Company of Austin will be moving into the old school tax office in Randall County Courthouse.

The firm will begin a year-long reappraisal of taxable property in the county Sept. 1.

Supervising the work here will be Larry Beard. Tax officers say the job will require about one year.

The firm was hired on a basis of $8 per parcel which is estimated to cost the county about $232,000. A cost, marketing and income approach to setting values is expected to be used.

by Troy Martin FROM THE CANYON RIM

Down the road about 10 miles from Plains, Georgia lies the thriving city of Americus, population 17,000.

To the folks in Plains, Americus must seem like a city metropolis because Plains numbers only 500. But one of that 500 is none other than Jimmy Carter.

To satisfy a desire to know what home folks think about the man who may be the next President of the United States I talked to Billy Blair, publisher of the newspaper in Americus.

Billy is a soft spoken knowledgeable Southerner who served in the state legislature while Jimmy Carter was in the Georgia Senate. I can tell you I was impressed with the Americus publisher and I gave some weight to what he had to tell me.

"I saw Jimmy Carter around and knew who he was but I didn't really get to know him until we both got interested in politics about the same time," Blair related. "He was elected to the Senate and I was elected to the House from the same county the same year and we both served four years."

Blair said Carter has lost only one time in his home county and that was when he got into the governor's race late in 1966. "The voters were already pledged to vote for Bo Calloway in the Republican primary and Jimmy lost to Lester Maddox."

Maddox went on to be elected governor in the Georgia Assembly although he received fewer votes than Callaway who had failed to poll a plurality.

Blair says Carter estimates that he shook some 500,000 hands and was elected governor in 1970.

Billy reports that Plains is not the same little town it was six months ago. New shops have sprung up and a lively business is being done in Carter mementos.

"It keeps them busy," said Blair. He estimates that the town may draw six times its population in tourists daily.

Blair likes Jimmy Carter.

"He is hard working," the Americus publisher declared. "He works 16 or 18 hour days. "He digs in. He looks for his own answers. He seeks counsel but he also looks for his own answers. He has a great capacity for study. Once convinced that he has a solution to a problem he is hard to change.

"He loves what he is doing. He always wants to do a good job.

"If he has ever been dishonest about anything, I can't recall it.

"There just aren't any flies on him."

Blair says stories that Carter is brooding and vindictive are not true.

"I have never known him to be vindictive," Blair declared. "Competitive . . . yes. Vindictive . . . no.

"I have always known him to be compassionate although not outwardly emotional. He took a position on civil rights back when it was not popular and many of his neighbors did not like it."

Blair knows Jimmy Carter as community minded. He says Carter took his first step into politics back in 1960 when he was named to the county school board. In Georgia there is a county and city school system. Carter strove to get the two consolidated, which would require sanction by the voters.

"He never quite made it on that," said Blair. "It hasn't been done yet."

Carter is a member of Plains Lions Club and served as Lions Club District Governor. He has also served on his community's library board and is a deacon in the Baptist Church.

"If he gets elected, I think he'll make you a good President," declared Blair with conviction.

At the community meeting on the new post office Wednesday night the central point on why the Post Office Department is in financial trouble was not discussed.

Ridiculous, unrealistic wage scales of postal employes is at the heart of it. We are not pointing a finger and we are glad our friends with the post office have a good deal but facts are facts.

Outlandish salaries of city workers broke New York and sent one of the most prosperous cities in the world over the hill to the poor house.

A postal official here Wednesday night announced that the pay scale is $8.04 an hour and that is only for a 40 hour week. That's $16,723.20 a year and what they get for overtime would take your hat off.

We have people on the university campus with doctorates who do not make as much as the people who deliver their mail. It's not realistic in comparison to the area's wages and undoubtedly will break the post office department whether a new post office is built in Canyon or not.

And it hasn't improved the service.

C.T. Davis, post office official from Amarillo, told the group that mail service is better and mail is getting through faster.

This just does not measure up to fact.

Mail for the Canyon News coming into the local post office is chronically late. We've had $200 worth of books, shipped by mail, ruined in transient in the past three months. The books were shipped in special envelopes designed to prevent damage.

The window service is slow and congested at the post office here because not enough people are on the job. This is in part at least because unrealistic wages quickly dissipates the budget allocated to the Canyon post office.

At the present rate, $40 an hour hires approximately five people. If the rate were a realistic $5 an hour it would hire eight people.

Our World

It is irrational to spend beyond income

By ANN BROWN

For 40 years, conservative Americans have insisted our fiscal irresponsibility, profligate waste, and deficit spending could only end in national bankruptcy.

Hundreds of thousands of individuals have gone bankrupt. No one seemed to notice — except the people directly involved.

Business firms close every day. Again, who cares? Only those involved.

According to the U. S. Dept. of Commerce, 27 states are now receiving more money from the federal government than they send to Washington, which means the rest of us are paying their bills. This situation has existed for years unnoticed.

New York City went bankrupt — and that got some attention — briefly. Now that the federal government is paying their bills, all seems to be back to normal.

But whether it's an individual, community, state, or city, when outgo exceeds income, there's coming a pay day someday.

According to the Bureau of Economic Analysis, the beggar states are not confined to the states lacking wealth; they include Alaska, New York, California, and Hawaii, four of our richest states.

And the area with the highest per capita income in America tops the list of beggars: Washington, D. C.!

Alaska ranks first in per capita income; New York is 5th; California is number 8, and Hawaii is number 10.

Texas ranks below the median in income (number 33), but only 17 states send more money to Washington than we do.

Anyone who studies the list of paying and receiving states can readily see it is not a matter of income but of management.

What is true of states is equally true of individuals, cities, and communities. Wherever more is consumed than is produced, trouble is inevitable. Every rational American knows this, yet bankruptcies mount.

According to the news report, Dallas is spending $23 million this year to bus their public school children across town.

That $23 million is not just wasted tax money; it will create havoc in the schools, homes, traffic, and the buses. It is totally irrational.

When the Grand Teton Dam was proposed, hundreds of the people who lived along the banks of the Teton River, pointed out the dangers involved, and pleaded with Big Brother to leave them alone.

The Dam was built. What did the local yokels know? How much will that fiasco cost the taxpayers in cash? Then think of the property destroyed, and the lives lost.

What has happened to Americans? Our forefathers rebelled and fought a bloody war over taxes on tea. What would have been their reaction if the government had interfered with their children and their homes?

Of course, not all parents have meekly submitted to the arrogant injustice of snatching their children out of the neighborhood school and sending them across town merely because of the color of their skin (a rank violation of the Constitution).

Quite a number of parents have gone to jail; others are severely depriving themselves — and their children — to send them to private schools.

One family in Amarillo sent seven children to a private school last year. The parents said if they had to buy their clothes at Goodwill, go hungry, and walk to work, they would not bus their children across town when there were schools all around them.

It started as a matter of principle. Now the parents are convinced their children are receiving so much better education at the Christian school they attend, they vow they will never send them back to public school. America's biggest industry may be cutting its own throat.

Willful waste makes woeful want no matter what is wasted.

A public showing of sculpture and paintings was arranged at the WTSU Activities Center this week by the Working Cowboy Artists association. The exhibition was sponsored by the WT Rodeo Club. Here Dave Brown and Bill Dabney arrange their work.

Dieters can eat out too

Eating several meals a week away from home doesn't have to be a caloric disaster, Marilyn Haggard, a foods and nutrition specialist says.

"Try to select restaurants which offer a variety of foods and a different menu each day. This gives the opportunity to eat a wide variety of foods to meet daily nutritional needs," she said.

Miss Haggard is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"If watching the waistline, try to find an eating establishment which offers a wide selection of salads or a salad bar and meats which are grilled or roasted. Avoid places where the entree is either fried or drenched in a thick, calorie-laden sauce.

"This goes for vegetables too — many of the most convenient eating places offer french fried potatoes as the only vegetable. Potatoes are a good food, but other vegetables are needed to assure a well-balanced diet," she reminded.

Select vegetables which are steamed or baked and served without the added calories of cream sauces, stuffings and butter. Be wise in selecting bread. Texas toast and those huge chunks of jalapeno cornbread are easily equal to two servings of bread each and with butter, they really add up, she reminded.

"If dessert is necessary, select a plain gelatin dish, custard or sherbet. You'll feel better mentally and physically all afternoon long if you eat in moderation at lunch." she said.

Driver charged

A female driver was arrested at 3:50 a.m. Thursday on charges of driving while intoxicated. She was apprehended in the 200 block of US Highway 87.

A futile exercise

In spite of the poor choice of nights for a public hearing, the public turned out in healthy numbers for the postal hearing.

It was a nice exercise in futility. The postal service presented its plans and the opposition presented its arguments and the boosters voiced its support all as if the decision to build a new post office would be made in Canyon.

It won't be, as one Canyon resident realized and confirmed. The decision will be made within the U.S. Postal Service, probably in Oklahoma City. This is not to say they will or won't take the public sentiments into consideration. But the postal service bureaucracy will have the final say.

Efforts by the opposition to enlist Congressional aid were not successful. For one thing, once Congress transformed the post office into a separate profit-seeking entity, it lost control of the service.

The experiment in capitalism as far as the post office has been concerned has been a disaster. Postage prices have risen dramatically. Service has decreased. Errors have increased.

Dale Fowlkes, district supervisor who lived in Canyon three years, listed the goals the postal service was given or assumed when the service was separated: to pay workers the comparable salary as the private sector; to give quality level postal service; to substantially improve working conditions and to make measurable strides to balance the income with the outgo.

They've done rather well on two goals. Average wages and fringe benefits for postal employees amount to $8.05 an hour compared to $8.04 an hour for workers such as the Teamsters' members.

With an agressive building program backed by $10 billion in construction bonds, the service should be improving the working conditions like mad.

That leaves the mandate to provide quality service and try to balance the budget and you all know how they've done with those goals.

Now, how about calling the experiment off? It was all a good idea, perhaps, to take politics out of the post office and make the service pay for itself.

But it hasn't worked. Why not put the post office back under the control of Congress, to give the people at least more of a say-so in the operation and policies.

And why not start considering the postal service a service again, necessary to the public good as other government services are. This is not to say that economy and budget balancing should be thrown out the window, but good quality postal service for the patron should be the primary goal. Then work on the budget.

Postage rates in every nation but Canada are higher than ours and maybe we'll just have to get used to the idea of paying still higher postage rates. But with good service, the price wouldn't be so galling.

Maybe it's needed

Quite a lot has been made of the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) edict to provide toilet and wash facilities within a five minute walk of all field and farm workers.

The concept of a prairie potty might be comical save for the fact that ridiculous ideas can easily become laws.

Of course, if a chemical outhouse and a 50-gallon drum of water with a spigot, all mounted on the back of a pickup would meet the regulation, then maybe there is something to say for the idea.

If, in this vast, open, treeless, bushless, even gulleyless land, you have ever been summoned by an urgent call of nature, you must admit there is some need for such a facility.

And on behalf of lettuce lovers everywhere, the idea needs some consideration.

Kahler at West Point

Dr. John Kahler, associate professor of History at WTSU, was one of 40 participants in a five week military history summer workshop at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

West Point faculty officers conducted discussions for the seminar which consisted of six civilian professors and 34 military officers of captain or major rank.

Participants were graded on three papers and in presentation of three lectures each. Dr. Kahler completed the course with an A-plus grade of 979 points out of a possible 1,000.

Topics for Dr. Kahler's lectures included:

An objective survey of the United States — Mexican War and the Texas Revolution with attention to the Alamo and the Mexican castle Chapultepec as symbols of American and Mexican nationalism.

The French politics and French foreign policies between the two world wars. Stress was given to the building of the Maginot Line and the difference between the French mass universal armies and the U. S. voluntary armies. Theories and policies of General DeGaulle were also included.

The third lecture topic presented by Kahler was the history of Viet Nam to 1954.

Dr. Kahler presented papers on these topics: Is there a single cause for all wars up to 1815?; Are material or moral factors more crucial in military victories from 1815-1918?; Was World War II a continuation of Warld War I in Europe?

The seminar visited the Civil War battle fields of Antietem and Gettysburg on a field trip. Another trip was taken to Ft. Putnam, a battlefield of the War of American Independence.

Dr. Kahler, who is sponsor of the service fraternity Alpha Phi Omega, made use of a bamboo cane, which the fraternity had awarded him last spring, while on these field trips.

The participants of the seminar were selected on recommendations of military science staff members from universities and colleges where ROTC is taught. They represented every part of the nation.

Members were housed for the occasion in one of West Points bachelor officers quarters, Robert E. Lee Barracks.

Kahler said that he was amazed at the way news media had blown up the West Point cheating scandal. He said that the young men who had been caught cheating were isolated from other students in a barracks. The cheaters are referred to locally as the "Benedict Arnold Brigade," according to Dr. Kahler.

Going somewhere? Or been? The Canyon News wants to know about it — and so do its readers.

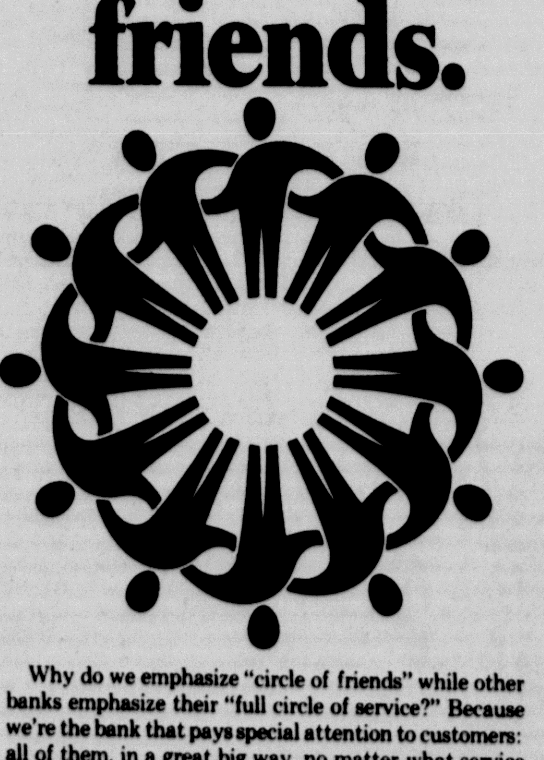
Join our circle of friends.



Why do we emphasize "circle of friends" while other banks emphasize their "full circle of service?" Because we're the bank that pays special attention to customers: all of them, in a great big way, no matter what service or services they use. The bank that thinks of customers as a circle of friends. And the nicest thing about our circle is that it's always open. There's always room for one more. How about you?

Backyard carnival for MD

Kevin Carroll, 14, became a full-fledged ringmaster yesterday when he and several other Canyon youngsters conducted a backyard Carnival Against Dystrophy.

Assisting Kevin in the fund-raising fete were Byron Curlee, 14; Andrea Curlee, 10; David Scott, 15; and Tim Grigsby, 14.

The Carnival was held at the home of the ringmasters parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Carroll of No. 2 Village Drive in Hunsley Hills.

Activities began at 9 a.m. and continued until 10 p.m. The event featured such games as Monopoly, Rebound, balloon relay, a treasure hunt, a penny sale, beanbag toss, fortune telling.

The group also provided such services as a book sale and bicycle rentals.

The Carnival was held to raise funds for the research and patient service programs of the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The idea for staging the event came from Ronald McDonald who is promoting MDA Carnivals on television and at local participating McDonald's Restaurants.

Last year, in cooperation with Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America, 42,239 Carnivals were held by children across the country, and over $1,372,572 was raised for MDAA's research and patient service programs.

Memories

Brazzil ends 25 year career

By JIM OWEN JONES

John Brazzil, County Extension Agent for Randall County since June 1, 1951, will end a 25-year career when he retires Aug. 31, this year.

Brazzil's employment with Randall County expands two and a half decades of what he calls a literal explosion in agricultural production and socio-economic development of the Panhandle. Development of irrigation, introduction of hybrid grain sorghum, giant leaps in agricultural technology, development of the cattle industry and Randall County's growth into a metropolitan complex all occurred during Brazzil's county agricultural agent career.

Paul Gross, district agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Amarillo, said Brazzil is one of the most responsible agents with whom he has worked.

"He is well accepted by the people he serves," says Gross. "The hallmark of his career has been professionalism. He has done outstanding landscape horticultural work and has been instrumental in working with the various agricultural commodity groups to increase economic returns for farmers, especially in wheat production."

Brazzil has taken graduate work at Texas A&M University and has attended Colorado State University and West Texas State University.

"I came to Randall County," Brazzil recalls, "during the beginning of the big development of irrigation on the High Plains. There had been preliminary work with irrigation in our area, but in 1951 and for the following five to six years things changed dramatically. We went from completely dry land farming to irrigation farming. By the end of the decade of the 50's, irrigation development reached its peak as far as good water supplies are concerned.

As a county agent, Brazzil had much to do with irrigation development in Randall County during the 50's. Holding irrigation meetings and advising farmers on water economics, Brazzil assisted farmers and industries alike wherever he could. If he didn't have the information he was always able to direct inquiries to the people who did.

Agricultural income skyrocketed in the county during the 1950's because of irrigation development which led to increased yields, more fertilizer use and other spin-off factors related to irrigation crop production.

The next big agricultural event, the county agricultural agent recalls, was the beginning of modern methods of grain sorghum production, especially with sorghum hybrid introduction in the mid-50's.

"This provided the ground work for significant agricultural developments later on," Brazzil said. Ready adaptation of hybrids into their farming gave Randall County producers a big inventory of feed grains which set the stage for the development of the cattle industry in the county.

"With this big inventory of grain," he added, "we saw big agribusiness interests and agricultural technology moving onto the Plains in the latter part of the 60's and early 70's. Our crops production increased tremendously.

"Of course," he said, "we continued to have a varied agricultural base in Randall County, such as swine and dairy industries. Believe it or not, we were the biggest dairy cattle county in West Texas for a number of years. Then the sugar beet industry moved in, and soybeans were introduced along with other minor crops.

Brazzil points to 1973 as the highlight for Randall County because "we probably reached our peak in grain sorghum, cattle and wheat production."

"It was the greatest agricultural income year we have had," he declares, "with 81 million dollars putting us in one of the top 10 counties in Texas."

Brazzil says the county has had problems since then because of dry years which stymied grain production and because of a drop in fed cattle prices, "although the county has still generally ranked in the top 15 counties in agricultural income in the state."

Randall County had been considered a rural county until about 1960, the year Brazzil says "the area became a part of the standard metropolitan area of Amarillo"

"With the expansion of Amarillo and the growth of west Texas, we have been in a growth pattern ever since, with both population and medium income rising."

The county agent is proud of the county's educational achievements.

"We have the highest school attendance per adult in Texas," he says, "with a 13-year median attendance for all adults in the county."

Referring to county Extension Service work, Brazzil believes the Extension Service has made a valuable contribution to the city by bringing technology and socio-economic information to the homeowner such as gardening, housing, horticulture, clothing, nutrition, health and other areas of family living.

He is quick to admit there have been some failures. He points to the frustration of not being able to find solutions to dwindling water supplies as they exist in the county. He says water is still a major concern because it affects not only agricultural growth but the financial and social stability of the area.

Of most satisfaction to the retiring agent has been the opportunity to watch the burgeoning youth programs in Randall County.

"When I came here," he recalls, "livestock shows were pretty much the extent of 4-H youth involvement. Since then, Potter and Randall county citizens and organizations have become involved and have offered tremendous support for all youth. A variety of activities now provide a wide range of opportunities for our young people.

"I have watched boys and girls come up through the years and take their place in the county as civic and government leaders," he adds with a gleam in his eye. "That is as rewarding as anything I've seen."

"There have been no big disappointments for me," he reminisced. "There have been some failures but I choose to look upon them as goals yet to be reached. For instance, the swine industry has not realized its fullest potential. And I have been somewhat disappointed with the trend of poultry production because sophisticated technology and markets and big production have all but replaced the farmers."

Brazzil said that during his 25 years, the role of the federal government has been varied. It moved into the area during the Korean War to encourage all-out production, and later introduced restrictive programs which have become a part of big agriculture.

"People have had lots of decisions to make during this time, but it has been a part of our maturing," he surmises.

Brazzil has seen hard times in the county such as the drought from 1952 to 1957.

"Severe problems touched just about everyone of us during those five dry years," he laments. "We had trouble with crops, livestock, and ultimately finances. Lots of people went out of business."

Brazzil said he has seen changes in attitudes of citizens over the years, especially toward agriculture.

"Most people," he says, "now know that agriculture is the base of the economy in our area and the source of our food and fiber. "

"Most people," he says, "now know that agriculture is the base of the economy in our area and the source of our food and fiber." It is a fact of life, he believes, that some people have yet to discover.

Of course, Brazzil has traveled lots of miles, all the roads, all the towns of Randall County and probably the entire High Plains. Retirement, he says, will not change him too much.

"Looking toward retirement," he quips, "is like a little experience I had when I first moved to Randall County. May wife and I parked next to the courthouse on this typical windy West Texas day in May, and waited for the wind to stop. But it never slowed a bit."

Brazzil thinks he'll never stop working.

Powerful herbs

Dried herbs are four times more powerful than fresh ones, and powdered herbs are twice as powerful as dried ones, Marilyn Haggard, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, says.

Dorm. . .

But she stressed that respect depends greatly on her.

Brenda says that being married gives an appearance of maturity. She feels that with David around everyone will feel more secure.

Kay says that the girls may feel more free to come to her for advice since she is younger. She feels that their continuing respect depends on whether she deserves it and continues to prove herself.

The duties of directors consist mainly of paper work and very little discipline. Both women agree that all duties center on the welfare of the residents.

According to Brenda, everything the director does is of service to the girls. She says that discipline is almost totally left up to the students.

Guidance is not as needed in Ruth Cross Hall as it is in freshman dorms, according to Brenda. Committees and councils in the dorm take most disciplinary problems to the University Judicial Board, which decides on the appropriate punishment.

Kay, who is in charge of freshman women students, feels that discipline is becoming a thing of the past as a duty for directors. Her main disciplinary concern is in settling roommate disputes.

Land and Hagar began their duties this summer. They are the universities first women dorm directors of such youth.

Brenda is busy with dorm activities and being a mother to Dixie while her husband is working on his master's degree at WTSU.

She and David are both 1974 graduates of WT with degrees in physical education. They come here from Dimmitt, where he coached in the schools.

Kay is attending classes part time on campus. She received her secretarial certificate from WTSU in 1973. She has been working as a secretary in the university administration for the past three years.

She came to Canyon from Pampa.

Although he claims his skill is meager, Thompson said he enjoys golf.

Turner fund opens

Accounts will be set up tomorrow for donations in memory of Suewelly Turner, who died Wednesday.

She was the wife of Don L. Turner, who reported news from Canyon for the Amarillo Globe-News for several months this past year.

Mrs. Turner died following the birth of their first child, a son, Scott Llyn. The baby is still listed in serious condition at Northwest Texas Hospital.

Donations are being asked from those who knew the Turners to help repay immense medical bills.

Chris Thomas is taking donations from the courthouse workers and Jessie Booth is taking donations from city workers.

Turner had recently taken a job as wire editor on the Odessa newspaper. Mrs. Turner was employed as a children's case worker for the State Commission for the Blind.

Robert Friemels announce birth

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Friemel of Rt. 1, Box 339 in Canyon announce the Aug. 19 birth of a daughter, Ann Kristina, who weighed 7 pounds and measured 19 ½ inches at birth in Palo Duro Hospital.

The father is a farmer in the community and the Friemel family includes an older child, Jeremy Daniel, 22 months. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Walker, Jr. of Amarillo and Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Friemel of Umbarger.

The Cowboys plays today

"The Cowboys" starring John Wayne will conclude the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum's summer Sunday movie on Aug. 29.

Admission is free to the 2:30 p.m. performance in the second floor lecture room of the main museum building.

The memorable Wayne epic is one of the few where the long-time hero is killed. Wayne plays Will Anderson, who is forced to hire 11 young boys to help herd his cattle to the railhead 400 miles away. Hardship after hardship makes men of the boys, who by themselves must get the cattle to their destination.

Also starring in the western are Roscoe Lee Browne, Bruce Dern, Coleen Dewhurst and Slim Pickens.

WALLS conform to one of three options: #ONE - 6" walls with R-19* insulation, #TWO - tongue and grooved styrofoam sheathing, 4" walls and R-11* insulation, or #THREE - R-15* minimum insulation. Walls must include a vapor barrier of 6 mil. polyethylene or foil-backed sheetrock. Sill insulation or sill caulking (under bottom plate) is also required.

CEILING insulation must equal R-30*.

FLOORS (if pier and beam construction) must be insulated with R-13*. In slab floors choose between Option #1, rigid urethane or styrofoam (3/4 minimum thickness) from top of floor along the outside edge of the slab down to the brick ledge, or Option #2, vermiculite poured in the cavity between bricks and slab up to the top of the floor.

WINDOWS AND DOORS are weather-stripped and caulked. Double pane glass or storm windows and insulated core or storm doors also ensure energy efficiency. It is recommended that glass area not exceed 8% of floor space.

OTHER RECOMMENDATIONS include the use of cool fluorescent lighting, a heating/cooling system like the heat pump that maximizes efficiency and an electronic air cleaner to be used with moving air systems.

Today there is no need to sacrifice comfort to save energy and money. The Energy Efficient Home - like everything else electric - is as modern as tomorrow. Call your Southwestern Public Service Company manager. He'll give you all the details on the modern, comfortable way to save energy and money with the Energy Efficient Home.

Council plans events

Plans for the annual federated club's dinner this fall were set in motion at a meeting Wednesday of Federated Club Council members.

Francis Holman, new council chairman, presided at the meeting which was devoted to plans for the fall federated club activities of the community.

Club representatives attending the council session were Addalene Barker and Virginia Allen from Sue Hite Club; Susie Owens and Evelyn Frieze from Woman's Book Club and Harriet Brandon and Janie Loudder from Heritage Woman's Club. No representatives were present from the Canyon Study Club or University Study Club of Canyon.

The tentative planning for the federated club dinner set the event to be held Nov. 8 at the University Church of Christ fellowship hall for all federated club women of the city.

A major emphasis of the council women's discussion centered on the problems of local club women who serve at district and state levels of federated club work. The council discussed the individual federated club woman's "lack of time and finances" to serve at advanced capacities and voted to institute a Federated Fund to assist local club women elected to district and state levels. The council also noted that the Federated Fund money will come from several fund raising projects throughout the year.

The state junior director, Harriet Brandon, discussed an emphasis program to be included in the federated club's programs this fall. The project, to be known as "Hands Up," is a crime prevention effort alerting women to the need for engraving driver's license numbers on all valuable personal belongings and informing others of the community.

Other fall efforts of federated clubs will include "Poll Power" participation to encourage eligible voters to make their preference known in the general election. The club women will be offering transportation to the polls for those needing it.

The local federated club's council also discussed the state federation project of benefitting Girlstown, USA throughout the coming year.

Yearbooks needed from clubs

Yearbooks from all city clubs are a necessary item for the Canyon News office to keep the staff adequately informed of upcoming meetings and events in the community.

All clubs are urged to provide current yearbooks, or typewritten lists of meetings, dates, times and special projects to the News office as soon as clubs resume their fall schedule.

Follow-up reports on club meetings should be turned into the News office as soon as possible following meetings and should cover business actions taken, projects planned and a brief thorough report of the club's program.

Clear polaroid and other black-white photographs will be accepted for publication at the discretion of the editorial staff. The News staff will also take pictures at club meetings where possible and will take pictures of club groups in the News office with prior arrangements being made.

Although we accept phoned-in reports, it is preferred that club reports be typewritten whenever possible and arrive at the News office before publication deadlines: 10 a.m. on Wednesday (for Thursday's paper) or 10 a.m. on Saturday (for Sunday's paper). Society page deadline for club meetings, weddings, engagements and other social affairs is 12 noon on Thursday for the Sunday publication.

Marriage vows read

Double ring marriage vows were exchanged Saturday evening, August 28, between Linda Jo Whipple and Bobby Fite in ceremonies read at the Calvary Baptist Church of Canyon.

Rev. Jim Brown, pastor of the church, officiated at the nuptial exchange. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dan Whipple of Rt. 1, Box 154, Canyon and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Glen W. Fite of 511 Elsie in Canadian.

The wedding altar was flanked with a 15 bract candelabrum with matching spiraling candelabrum on each side. Blue and yellow daisies with white roses and accenting blue and yellow ribbons carried out the wedding theme with aisle candles in brass holders. Hurricane globes with greenery and yellow ribbon bows and streamers marked the wedding aisle. The unity candle was arranged on a pedestal with white tapers on each side for the service. Candlelighters were Amy and Cindy Muir of Canadian.

The Wedding Prayer, More and Whither Thou Goest were presented by the soloist, Mrs. Sharon Howard. Organist, Mrs. Judy Pendergrass, accompanied and provided traditional wedding marches and background music for the ceremony.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal floor length wedding gown of nylon organza and re-embroidered Chantilly lace over bridal taffeta. The wedding dress was designed with a high neckline, empire styled waist, long Bishop sleeves and the bell shaped skirt was full in the back. Inserts of lace enhanced with satin ribbon complemented the neckline, bodice, sleeves and skirt of the wedding gown. A wide border of lace framed the hemline and the full back of the wedding gown was swept into a Chapel length wedding train. Her veil of imported illusion was bordered with matching Chantilly lace and held to a lace coif. The bridal bouquet featured white daisies and white roses with accenting baby's breath and yellow rosebuds.

Bridal attendants wore pale blue dotted swiss dresses with pale blue hats decorated with white daisies and blue ribbon with streamers down the back. The dresses were styled with empire waists, long sleeves and bell skirts. The matron of honor, Mrs. Kathy Jordan, sister of the bride, carried a bouquet of yellow and blue daisies accented with yellow ribbon. Other bridal attendants carried blue and yellow daisy bouquets accented with blue ribbon and baby's breath.

Also attending the bride were Miss Janet Sluder of Bushland, Miss Edythe McCurry of Amarillo, Miss Becky Gooch of Pampa and Mrs. Pam Luman of Amarillo.

Flower girl was the bride's niece, Jill Jordan of Oklahoma City, who was escorted by the bridegroom's nephew, T. J. Muir of Canadian. Ringbearer was Doug Muir of Canadian.

Mark Spann of Panhandle served as best man. Groomsmen were the bride's brother, Dan Whipple of Canyon, Randy Fewell of Pampa, Jeff Cullender of Canadian and Roger Brown of Spearman.

Ushering were Frank Muir and Bill Muir, both of Canadian and brothers of the bridegroom, and Carl Robinson of Spearman.

A four tiered wedding cake decorated with blue and white and featuring a pair of doves on the top tier was served at the reception following in fellowship hall of the church. The reception table was covered with white dotted swiss with chiffon overlay and drape and held a silver punchbowl and tray with a silver coffee service and silver candelabra.

Punch, coffee, cake, mints and nuts were served by Debbie Muir and Marcia Muir, both of Canadian, Debbie Tidwell of Canyon and Elaine Frische of Hereford.

The bride is a graduate of Canyon High School and is employed with Dr. David Bechtol of Canyon. The bridegroom is a student at West Texas State University and employed with Western Sales and Testing. He graduated from Canadian High School.

The couple will be residing in Canyon.

Wedding read here

Bouquets of mixed summer flowers flanked each side of the church altar of First United Methodist Church Saturday evening, August 28, as Miss Sarah Jane Schacht and David Lynn Cameron pledged double ring marriage vows.

Rev. Bill Kent, church pastor, officiated at the nuptial service. The wedding altar was backed with a large arched candelabrum and the traditional kneeling bench was used during the service.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. F. O. Schacht and the late Fritz Schacht of Lockney. She is a spring graduate of West Texas State University's School of Nursing and has been employed for the summer at Lockney General Hospital. She will begin employment with Palo Duro Hospital in Canyon in September.

The bridegroom is coordinator of Christian Education for Canyon First United Methodist Church. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Cameron of Stratford.

Preceding the marriage service, Gary Thrasher of Amarillo sang The Greatest of These Is Love. The vocalist also presented the Irish folk tune Be Thou My Vision as a prayer hymn. The procession was Trumpet Voluntary by Purcell and the recessional selection was The Heavens Declare The Glory of God by Marcello.

A candlelight chiffon gown was worn by the bride as she was escorted and presented in marriage by her brother, Clar Schacht of Kismet, Kansas. The wedding gown featured a molded bodice of re-embroidered Alencon lace and English net with tiny seed pearls adorning the front of the mandarian neckline. The wedding gown had long Juliet sleeves emphasized with matching Alencon lace and English net. The empire styled waist was framed by a sheer layered skirt which extended into a full chapel train.

The bride's matching wedding veil was made by her mother and was a double tiered arrangement of candlelight bridal illusion edged with seed pearls and attached to an Alencon lace half-cap. Her bridal bouquet, which was also arranged by her mother, featured gardenias and white roses with her father's wedding band nestled into the bridal flowers.

The bridegroom wore a candlelight tailcoat trimmed with brown velvet for the ceremony.

The bride's sister, Margaret Schacht, served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Sandra Carey of Odessa and Tamra Cameron of Stratıord, sister of the bridegroom. The bridal attendants wore floor length gowns of apricot crepe with flared skirts flowing from the waists. The dresses featured caped collars and each bridal attendant carried a bouquet of mixed summer flowers tied with brown velvet ribbon. They wore candlelight picture hats banded with brown velvet and complemented with small clusters of flowers matching their bouquets.

Jimmy Cameron of Dumas, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man and groomsmen were Otto Schacht of Bryan, brother of the bride, and Wilson Holman of Levelland. Ushering were Jerry Howard of Canyon and Jimmy Teeter of Booker.

The bride's family hosted the wedding reception which followed in the church parlor. A rehearsal dinner was held for the wedding party at the Yum-Yum Tree Restaurant in Canyon Friday evening with the groom's parents as hosts.

Following a wedding trip to Colorado, the couple will be establishing their home at 521 12th Avenue in Canyon. For travel, the bride and bridegroom wore matching burgundy suits made especially for their trip.

Retired mail carrier, Windy Miller, inspects his retirement project which is a cookbook collection of his favorite recipes.

Two year needlework project almost ready

Needlework is having a rebirth throughout the nation and Canyon is no exception for the artistic revival. The pastime of needlework, knitting and projects of that sort were once thought of as solely the work of middle-aged and elderly ladies.

Today some 45 million Americans — that's nearly one in every five — spend a part of their spare time with needlework projects and other creative efforts.

From teens to senior citizens — including both male and female — the needlework rage is being revived in the form of old fashioned needlework get togethers for quilting and the making of wall hangings.

In Canyon, the Fine Arts Club has been involved in a two year project to display the history of the county on a wall hanging which will be presented to Canyon City Library soon.

The wall hanging, done solely by hand stitchery, has been under the guidance of Claudia Neelley, project chairman.

Many of the figures in the hanging have been filled to give a dimensional effect. The hanging itself is composed of a number of different historic scenarios which are being assembled together to form one large wall hanging.

Fine Arts Club members would probably agree that "needlework answers the individual's need for being creative and in this day of mass-production is an expression of oneself".

A donation to the military science scholarship funds is accepted by LTC Charles Laakso from Don Max Vars, from First National Bank.

Miller Presents Relish Recipe

W. E. Miller who has been known as "Windy" throughout the community for many years has spent his time since retirement as a postal mail carrier compiling a cookbook filled with "recipes for everyone".

Aptly titled the "Happy Cooker", the book contains 649 recipes along with bits of poetry and a metric conversion table. Published by the Cookbook Publishers, Inc. of Kansas City, Ks., Miller's first cookbook printing amounted to 510 copies of which many have already been sold to neighbors, kin and friends.

Miller spent 40 years with the Canyon Post Office previous to his retirement and at the time of retirement had spent his past 25 years (1941-66) as a rural carrier for Route 1, Canyon.

Seven main divisions are contained in the cookbook including Main Dishes, Soup — Salad — Vegetables, Bread — Rolls — Pastry, Cakes — Cookies — Desserts, Candy — Jelly — Preserves, Appetizers — Pickles — Relishes, and Beverages — Miscellaneous.

Included in the "Happy Cooker" are some unusual recipes, seldom found in cookbooks, according to Miller. He has included special recipes for Dutch Honey and Honey Syrup, along with Pickled Peaches, a recipe for Strawberry — Buttermilk Ice Cream and Beef Jerkey.

He says that he has always "loved to eat" and his wife, Beulah, is a home economics major and homemaker herself.

Throughout the years, Mr. Miller has enjoyed his own turn at helping with the kitchen chores and cooking for the family.

One of his favorite recipes included in the book is one from his own mother's collection which follows:

LINDY RELISH

2 medium heads cabbage
8 medium size onions
9 green peppers
3 red peppers
8 medium size carrots
12 large green tomatoes

Grind and mix together. Put ¾ cup salt over mixture and let stand 3 hours. Drain and add:

1 Tablespoon celery salt
1 Tablespoon mustard seed
6 cups sugar
½ gallon white vinegar

Mix well and seal in sterilized jars. Do Not Cook.

Rifle team trials set

LTC Charles L. Laakso, professor of military science at West Texas State University, has announced school-wide try-outs for the university rifle team will be held Sept. 9 and 10 at 3 p.m. at the ROTC Rifle Range.

Enrollment in ROTC is not a prerequisite for team membership.

All WTSU students are eligible to try-out and WTSU varsity letters are awarded to those students qualifying for the team.

Rifle team competition will be conducted on an indoor range utilizing a small bore, .22 calibre rifle. High quality equipment, ammunition, and rifles are provided at no cost to those trying out for the team and to team members.

Matches this school year include competitions in Roswell, NM., Lawton & Goodwell, OK., Abilene & El Paso, TX.

For further information, contact Sergeant Major Salazar, rifle team coach, at the military science (ROTC) department office or call 656-3956.

New magazine at WTSU

To help fill student needs, the Student Activities Council of West Texas State University is sponsoring publication of "Sunrise," a new magazine.

"The need for a new campus point of view first prompted the magazine," said Keith Ribnick, Sunrise editor.

The magazine will be published every two months during the academic year.

Featuring information related to WTSU and the surrounding area, the September issue, which was circulated Friday, lists off-campus housing and a student needs list.

A six-page reference guide, the needs list names services available to students in Amarillo and Canyon.

Also included in the magazine will be a series of articles on the Activities Center and SAC. "WT Marquee," a description of available campus entertainment, such as SAC activities, will also be featured. Regular features of the magazine will be "University Information Service," outlining campus services, and "Canyon City Limits," a humorous column.

Western dancing

Due to student demand, instruction in western dancing will be offered during the fall semester at West Texas State University.

Offered by the department of health, physical education, and recreation, the course will be taught by Mrs. Mary Hill, an instructor in the department, from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday in Room 202E of the Activities Center.

The course will feature basic instruction in dances familiar to the Panhandle area such as "Cotton-Eyed Joe," "Heel-Toe Polka" and the "Two Step."

"We offered the course last year on a voluntary basis and the students really wanted to take the course for credit," Mrs. Hill said.

Watering know how will cut bill some

With hot summer weather at hand, the home gardener needs to check his watering methods to keep the water bill down.

"First, check the methods of application," advises Everett Janne, landscape horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "There is no need to apply water any faster than the soil will soak it up. Sandy type soils will usually take water almost as fast as it can be applied, but tight clay soils take up water slowly. Select the method of application that best fits your soil."

Using a mulch wherever possible also saves on water usage, says the horticulturist. A good mulch conserves moisture, prevents compaction, keeps soil temperature lower and reduces the weed population. Since organic mulches tend to decompose or sometimes wash away, they should be checked frequently and replaced where necessary.

While night-time watering increases the chance for plant diseases, it does allow for more efficient use of water since evaporation rates are lowest.

"Another important practice in the wise use of water is to do a thorough job of watering each time it becomes necessary to irrigate," emphasizes Janne. "A thorough watering at 7 — to — 10 — day intervals encourages deep root penetration and full use of available soil moisture. Just because plants wilt during the heat of the day doesn't mean the soil is dry. Test the soil's moisture content with a soil probe or stake to determine if the soil is dry rather than depending on the appearance of plants."

Regardless of the size of the water bill, don't stop watering completely as plants can die due to moisture stress, especially during hot, windy weather. Just use this precious resource as efficiently as possible, reminds Janne.

Pensions eyed in new course

A course in pensions, trusts and insurance will be offered for the first time by the department of business administration.

Taught by Dr. Zeke Marchant, the course is designed for middle and top management levels.

"Managers learn about management but often they soon realize they don't know anything about insurance," Dr. Marchant said.

Pensions, annunities, retirement benefits, trusts and insurance will be included in the 55991-1 level course, Seminar in Insurance, held on Wednesday at 7 p.m. in Amarillo.

Adult scouting meet Wednesday

A neighborhood meeting for all adults interested in the Girl Scouting and Brownie program for girls of the city will be held Wednesday morning, Sept. 1.

The adult meeting will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Canyon Girl Scout Building.

Karen Sheffy, local leader, reports that registration slips have been issued through the schools to all girls so that those interested may sign up for Girl Scouts and Brownies this year.

Other girls and adults desiring further information about the scouting program should contact Mrs. Sheffy at 655-4642.

Randall Burtons have infant son

Mr. and Mrs. Randall L. Burton of Rt. 4, Box 221, Canyon announce the August 19 birth of a son weighing 7 pounds, 7 ounces at Palo Duro Hospital in Canyon.

The baby measured 20 inches at birth and has been named Russell Stewart. The father is employed with Buck's Sporting Goods.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart of Odessa and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burton of Canyon.

Green fund totals $965

Approximately $965 has been contributed to the scholarship fund established at West Texas State University in memory of Dr. Jimmie Green, who died during the summer.

Dr. Green, 46, professor and head of the department of plant science, died of an apparent heart attack June 9. Dr. Ron Thomason has been named as acting department head.

Dr. Green had been with the university since 1954 and received the Faculty Excellence Award in 1974. He was named as outstanding professor in the school of agriculture in 1970 and 1973.

Dr. Ray Hinders, president of the Agriculture Development Association, said he hopes the memorial fund will reach $2,500 to $3,000 to make possible $200 scholarship awards from the West Texas State University Agriculture Foundation.

Donations to the Jimmie Green Memorial Scholarship Fund may be sent to Box 775, WT Station, Canyon, TX 79016.

Apply now

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service of Randall County will begin taking applications tomorrow for cost-sharing funds on conservation practices.

The ASCS will use these funds to aid farmers in laying underground irrigation pipeline and in other farming conservation measures.

Funds for the program are allocated to the ASCS by the United States Department of Agriculture. The service pays a percentage of costs depending on the size of the project.

Deadline for applications is Sept. 8.

Milk volume is down now

Records from the Texas Milk Market Order indicate that both the volume of milk and the number of dairymen delivering milk on the Texas market is down from a year ago.

This analysis comes from Dr. Randall Stelly, economist for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The total volume of milk in the Texas market was almost 297 million pounds in July, down 5 million pounds from July, 1975. However, the amount of milk used in Class I (fluid use) was 69 per cent of all producer milk, up 3.89 per cent from last July.

According to Stelly, there was a decrease of 771 dairy producers delivering milk on the Texas Milk Market Order this July compared to July, 1975. However, he points out that the 3,340 producers still delivering milk are getting larger — on the average. While producer receipts for the first seven months of 1976 were 21 million pounds or about 1 per cent less than for the same period last year, average daily milk deliveries per producer increased 586 pounds — from 2,370 to 2,956 pounds.

A look at milk prices indicated that producers in Zone I (Dallas — Fort Worth area) of the market order received $10.62 per hundred pounds for milk (at 3.5 per cent butter) used in Class I. Producers in other parts of Texas received various adjustments to this price, with those in the Rio Grande Valley receiving as much as 75 cents more per hundredweight, notes Stelly.

Learn to play backgammon

Backgammon, which is one of the oldest games of recorded history, will be included in the Community Education classes being offered this fall through the Canyon Independent School District.

Sue Ann Davis will be the course instructor when the class begins on Sept. 14. The class will be held from 7-9 p.m. on Mondays for a period of four weeks with a class fee of $5.

Those planning to take the backgammon course are asked to provide their own sets when possible. The game, which is the newest craze in family games, is a game that rewards skill but is dependent on luck. The average game takes from 5-6 minutes and has been played for many years in countries abroad.

Mrs. Davis notes that the game is good family entertainment and the Davis' eleven year old son, Matt, is one of the best players around their home.

Backgammon has for years been known as the "game on the backside of the checker board" and is just now catching on in the United States, according to the instructor.

Orienteers seek members

The West Texas State University orienteering club, Panhandle Orienteers, is seeking members for the coming year.

A new member meeting will be held in the student lounge of the military science building, Sept. 2, at 5 p.m.

Orienteering, a rapidly growing outdoor sport imported from Sweden, has just recently come to WTSU. An initial contingent of three contestants from WTSU went to the Southern Region Orienteering Meet in Louisiana last year and returned with two trophies and a lot of enthusiasm. Since then a club has been formed and grown to over twenty members; a University Orienteering team has been formed; and, intercollegiate competition has been entered.

In the coming year, the Panhandle Orienteers plan to enter a minimum of seven intercollegiate meets and to host two meets in nearby Palo Duro Canyon. Outside meets carry the WTSU team to Colorado, New Mexico and Louisiana as well as to various schools within Texas.

Maj. Telfair stressed that the Orienteering Club and the WTSU Orienteering Team are open to all students and faculty regardless of age, sex, major, etc. No experience or special physical condition is required, only an appreciation for the outdoors and a desire for companionship and friendly competition.
